TOLMAN MUST QUIT TRAFFIC

"King" of Lenders Threatened With Prison If He Violates Court Order.

ILLEGAL DEALERS TO GO

Illegally money lending in this country received a body blow today when Daniel H. Holman, the "King of the Money Sharks," was fined $1,000 at Trenton, N. J., according to dispatches to the AMERICAN, and was put on probation for three years to quit the money lending game.

Violation of probation will mean a prison term for Tolman, according to today's dispatches from Trenton.

This sentence is of particular interest to Boston for two reasons.

One of Tolman's sixty-nine "loan shark" agencies is located in this city.

State officials are making a determined effort to drive the illegal money lenders out of the city and of the State as well.

Tolman's chain of agencies netted him $500,000 a year. It was money bled out of the pitiable victims of his extortionate methods.

Tolman had been sought all over the country. His offices were run by subordinates and, in case of a criminal prosecution, the best that could be done in most cases was to impose a fine.

But on July 30, 1912, Trenton officers raided the Tolman agency in that city and one of the first arrests they made was that of Tolman himself.

The "King of the Loan Sharks" even resisted arrest and had to be literally dragged to the patrol wagon, so fearful was he of getting into the clutches of the law.

Tolman fought the prosecution every step of the way up through the courts, but was finally forced to stand trial. Then he changed his defiant attitude and pleaded guilty. Sentence was imposed today.

The payment of $1,000 fine means nothing to Tolman, who is worth millions.

But the three years' probation, with the provision that he may not operate a loan agency anywhere in the United States for three years, under penalty of being sent to prison, puts his money lending at an end.

The Trenton officials feel that the "King of the Loan Sharks" is dead, so far as his business goes, and that the most effective blow yet has been struck at the whole loan shark system.

Dies in Bathing of Heart Disease

Edward Smith of Chicago, a bartender at the Nelay House, Nahant, went swimming today from the float near the Bay Side Motor Club. Friends with him were preparing to dive, when Smith said, "Watch me." He immediately dived. Failing to reappear friends searched for and found his body. He had died of heart disease.

Sylvia Pankhurst Freed from Prison

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant suffragettes, who was arrested when she led a crowd to storm Premier Asquith's home, was released from jail today. She had inaugurated a hunger and sleep strike while imprisoned, refusing to eat or lie down. Annie Kenney, another suffragette, was also released from jail.

Senate Is Through with Col. Mulhall

WASHINGTON, August 1.—The Overman Lobby-Inquiry Committee today completed its examination of Colonel M. M. Mulhall and announced that he would be released to the House Inquiry Committee.

Mulhall was permitted to go to his home in Baltimore as the House will not begin its examination until next week.

Colonel Mulhall, under vigorous cross-examination was forced to confess that some of the statements he made in his letters asserting his ability to get inside information about legislative matters and his ability to manipulate committees, were the mere products of his imagination.

Union Picked Fowl Are Now Possible

Union-picked chickens and feathers from being handled by strictly union men, became possible in Boston for the first time today, when the Chicken Pickers' & Handlers' Union effected a settlement of their twenty-four hour strike with three of the largest local firms. Several other houses are negotiating for a settlement, and the men now say that a complete victory is assured. Under the terms secured by the union, they are given a universal ten-hour day.

Lynn Postoffice May Be Restored

The postoffice at Lynn, which was made a branch of the Boston postoffice on February 1, may be discontinued as a branch office and re-established as a first-class office under existing laws, according to a ruling at Washington today by Comptroller of the Treasury Downey. It is probable that the Lynn branch will be made an independent office at once, as Postmaster-General Burleson has received a flood of protests since the office became a branch.

Capt. 'Bill' to Hunt for Girl's Slayer

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 1.—Captain "Bill" McDonald, United States marshal, and famous in Texas as a "bad man" catcher, left here today after announcing that he had taken up the investigation of the mysterious murder of Miss Florence Brown in a local real estate office last Monday. Reports from detective headquarters said suspicion was leading toward another city and pointing to a man of wealth.

Rourke Extends Light Contract.

Commissioner Louis R. Rourke of the public works department today extended for a period of six months, the city's contract with the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company for lighting the city's gas lamps. This latest extension of time did not meet with the approval of Mayor Fitzgerald.

NEW WAR ON MONEY LENDERS

Prosecutor Calls on Victims to Help Drive Traffic from State.

AIDED BY DECISIONS

Victims of illegal loan "sharks" in Boston can help the State drive the "sharks" out, said Clarence W. Rowley today. Mr. Rowley's advice to the victims is:

"Don't pay the bloody ——."

Mr. Rowley is attorney for E. Gerry Brown, supervisor of small loans, or loans under $300. Mr. Rowley and Mr. Brown have just won a double victory in the city courts by getting conviction and $500 fines against the Mason Financial Company, and the Fidelity Guarantee Company, both doing business at No. 19 Milk street. Leo M. Friedman, who defended the two companies, appealed the cases. The companies were found guilty of making small loans without licenses.

Mr. Rowley snapped out some pretty plain talk today about loan "sharking." He and Mr. Brown intend to drive this kind of business clean out of Massachusetts.

To Drive All Out.

"There are at least six more companies similar to these in Boston," said Mr. Rowley. "Four are very prominent. We expect to clean them all up by October.

"If the people who are victims of these illegal loan 'sharks' will refuse to pay, they will aid greatly in driving them out of business. As soon as these agencies find they are not getting back either interest or principal they will soon stop making loans."

Mr. Rowley said he would very much like to summon Lemuel B. French of No. 8 South Dearborn street, Chicago, who is head of the Mason Financial Company and the Fidelity Guarantee Company.

Then Mr. Rowley gave a few surprising figures, as follows:

"There are between 1,000 and 1,500 people in Boston this minute who are victims of illegal loan 'sharks.' They are paying back, at a very low estimate, $60,000 a year in interest on a $25,000 principal, which is seldom, if ever cleared up.

"These two companies, as well as the others of that kind, have hundreds of these loans of $251, $252 and $353. And all of them, with the exception of possibly twelve, are illegal.

$50,000 a Year Profits.

"The profits of the Mason Financial Company and of the Fidelity Guarantee Company I estimate at not less than $50,000 a year."

Miss Daisy B. Lacy, resident manager of the Mason Financial Company, said today: "We certainly do not carry on an illegal business. I don't care what one says to the contrary, every financial transaction here is above board. I know, because I am manager."

Miss Lacy is twenty-three years old and lives in East Boston.

Miss Helen M. Foster is listed as the manager of the Fidelity Guarantee Company.

Man Fined $60 as Assault Result

Isadore Voytik, living at No. 35 West Second street, was arraigned in the South Boston District Court today on the charge of assault and battery on George Gotz. The court found him guilty and imposed a fine of $10. On an additional charge of carrying a slungshot he was fined $50. He entered an appeal in both cases and was bound over in the sum of $400.

Boy Dying After Fall.

Stasia Cominski, five, of No. 82 Cherry street, Chelsea, is in a critical condition at the Frost Hospital with injuries received in a thirty-foot fall from the roof of his home.

MITCHEL TO LEAD AGAINST TAMMANY

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—After a stormy all-night session of the anti-Tammany office, John Purroy Mitchel, collector of the port of New York, was named as the Fusion candidate for Mayor of Greater New York. Mitchel was named on the ninth ballot with forty-five votes to forty-three for District Attorney Williams. On the previous ballot Borough President McCleany had twenty-two votes. Eight shifted to Mitchel, twelve to Whitman and two remained firm. When it was seen that this would create a tie vote of forty-three votes the two remaining McCleany men declared themselves for Mitchel.

"I am very much gratified," said Mitchel after he was told of the result. "My object is to do the best I can to get elected and to fulfil the pledges of the platform."

The rest of the ticket selected is as follows: Comptroller, William A. Prendergast; president Board of Aldermen, George McAneny; president Borough of Manhattan, Marcus M. Marks; president borough of Brooklyn, Lewis H. Pounds; president Borough of Queens, Robert W. Higbie; president Borough of Bronx, Cyrus C. Miller; president Borough of Richmond, George Cromwell; District Attorney New York County, Charles S. Whitman.

Diaphanous Skirt Loses Ball Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—A diaphanous skirt lost the Westport team a game of ball. The Westports were five runs ahead in the ninth inning, when the girl with the skirt got between the sun and the players near third base. Anything was a hit—some were three base hits. The Westport team had no ajax for the ball and South Norwalk batted out the game.

Ice Company Yields in Firemen's Strike

The three weeks' strike of firemen of the Central Ice Company at Dorchester ended today, when the company agreed to an eight, instead of twelve-hour day, and to pay the firemen $2 per week increase in wages. Union saloons and other business places had refused to buy the company's ice during the strike.

Ward 24 Club Outing.

The Ward 24 Democratic Club will hold its annual grand outing at Lee's Inn, Squantum. Among the speakers will be Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh and Judge Thomas P. Riley.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Carrie Sullivan of No. 274 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street gave birth to a ten-pound boy in Bellevue a few days ago. Mrs. Delia Jeffries of No. 223 West Sixty-eighth street became the mother of a ten-pound son yesterday. One is to be named John L. and the other James J.

Elliott Denies "Demagogue" Story

New Haven Head Repudiates Morning Paper "Interview."

A Boston morning newspaper, in an interview with Howard Elliott, the newly appointed president of the New Haven Railroad, quoted Mr. Elliott as follows:

"The demagogue, the dilettante and the sentimentalist are abroad in the land and are trying to interfere with the natural workings of these great forces of collectivism."

Being asked by the AMERICAN if these words were correctly quoted Mr. Elliott replies by telegram as follows:

"Boston American, Boston.

"I never made the statement quoted by you and do not feel that way at all."

"Only the Rich Will Eat Meat in 1923"

Ordinary Folks Won't Know What It Tastes Like, Says Master Butcher.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—"There is to be no reduction in the price of meat in the United States within the next five years. On the contrary, in 1923, meat of all kinds will cost so much that none but the very well-to-do can eat meat."

So said J. T. Russell, president of the National Master Butchers' Association at the annual picnic of the United Master Butchers of Chicago.

"American people will scarcely know the taste of meat ten years from now," he stated.

Russia to Stay Away from Fair

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Cable dispatches today say that the Russian government decided today not to participate officially in the San Francisco exposition.

Germany has not yet made up its mind whether to take part in the Panama exposition in San Francisco in 1915. The Minister of the Interior at Berlin today denied reports that Germany had barred the fair, and said that the government would not make a decision for another month.

PRIESTS AID GEM SEARCH

Intimated That Conscience-Stricken Woman Has Confessed to Robbery.

JAP KNEW SECRET SPRING

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 1.—Mrs. John H. Hanan—who was robbed of $150,000 worth of jewels the day before Mrs. C. C. Rumsey was robbed of others worth $100,000—today gave reporters to understand that she knows the thief and that the thief is a woman.

The disclosure came through a slip of Mrs. Hanan's tongue. She evaded it afterward, but would not deny her implication.

Speaking of the jewels, she said, "She will return them, I am confident." She used "her" and "she" in speaking of the robber and added, "No woman's conscience would permit her to keep them."

She said her belief that the gems would be returned followed an interview with two priests of the Narragansett churches. Some believe that the woman who stole the gems, her conscience burdened, has told her story to the confessional, and that the priests will persuade her to return the jewels.

Confident of Return.

Mrs. Hanan obviously expects their return; obviously believes she knows where they are, and encourages the thief to make restitution by promising forgiveness and immunity.

It became known today that a maid in the Hanan household has not accounted for her whereabouts Friday night, when the jewels were stolen.

Mrs. Hanan today denied that there was any suspicion pointing toward a Jap butler whom she engaged six months ago.

SUSPECT TRIES TO ESCAPE AS OFFICERS CALL AT HOTEL

A man giving the name of "Hon. B. Barnet, London," was arrested at the Hotel Touraine this noon on a charge of attempted larceny of $550 worth of diamond rings and stickpins from the Bigelow, Kennard Company, jewelers, at Washington and West streets. The arrest was made by Inspectors Lynch and McCarthy. They say that Barnet went to the jewelry store and ordered the goods sent to the hotel for his inspection, and that, when the detectives appeared, he attempted to escape on a pretence of going to his room.

Mary Bancroft Dead.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 1.—Miss Mary Bancroft of Boston, relative of the prominently known family of Bancrofts, died at her Summer home at Kennebunkport. Her body will be taken to Groton, Mass., for burial.

Rev. Charles C. Rice Dead.

DANVERS, Aug. 1.—Rev. Charles C. Rice, one of the oldest clergymen here, died today after a long illness. He had been pastor of the First Congregational Church of Danvers for thirty-one years, up to 1894, when he resigned.

PAJAMA DANCE AT GAY PARTY AT THE PIER

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 1.—Stories of a gay party at the Point Judith Country Club, at which several of the women guests are declared to have danced in pajamas, are being circulated here today and are moving almost as much of a sensation as the hunt for the jewel thieves.

The party, which did not break up until almost sunrise today, was a masquerade affair. Some of the best known young matrons and maids of New York and New England society were among the guests. The pole set was strongly represented and some of the guests, it is hinted, were young people who have figured in the moonlight bathing parties and other lively affairs which have made life at this seashore resort in the last few years decidedly lively.

Clashes With Detective.

Some of the detectives who are working on the jewel thefts insisted on remaining about the clubhouse and Malcolm Stevens, one of the managers of the party is reported to have almost come to blows with one of the sleuths in evening dress who refused to leave. The fact that he was not in costume is declared to have lead to his prompt discovery when the hilarity was at its height.

All in all, the party is declared to have been quite the liveliest this resort has seen in years, and that is saying a good deal. Champagne, according to reports which leaked out today, flowed with more than customary freeness. The dances, it is asserted, particularly as the early morning hours wore on, grew more and more daring. But it was the costumes which made the party the real sensation.

There are people at the Pier today who assert that they saw several young women of the cottage colony who are members of well-known families, turkey trotting and bunny hugging in pajamas. Some of these are said to have been wives of the polo men.

Wore Ankle Watches.

Turkish costumes are said to have vied with the pajamas. Trouser skirts are said to have been conservative in ball room attire.

One observer says fifteen of the young women wore ankle watches, and that when frolicking was at its height the time pieces were perfectly easy to count.

Seven Fined for Salisbury Gaming

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 1.—Louis Newburg, Carl H. Little, Winslow Hardy, John Sharky, Jerome J. Sullivan and Frank Emmett were arraigned today in the Newburyport Police Court before Judge T. C. Simpson, on charges of keeping and maintaining games of chance at Salisbury Beach. The arrests were the result of a raid conducted by agents of the Watch and Ward Society, at Salisbury Beach yesterday.

The men pleaded nolo contendere and were fined $6 each.

William Willett, aged sixteen years, was arraigned in the juvenile session of the same court and was fined $6 on a similar charge.

Fear for Missing Somerville Man

The police of Greater Boston today acknowledged their inability to find George C. St. Germaine of West Somerville, supposed to be mentally deranged by illness, missing from home since July 14. It is now feared that he may have met with foul play or have died from exposure. He left home four days after the birth of a fourth child. His wife and family are destitute.

M'PEAKE FINED $100 FOR POINT OF PINES RAID

Frank J. McPeake, holder of the inn license at the Point of Pines Hotel which harbored the "Lynaway Club," raided by Chairman Walter T. White of the Revere Board of Selectmen, was fined $100 today in the Chelsea court for maintaining a liquor nuisance. He appealed and was held in $200.

Attorney James H. Vahey declared at a bench conference that the full scandal had not come out and that what facts had been disclosed were "overplayed."

Attorney Vahey made a plea for clemency. He said it was Manager McPeake's first offence and asked that the complaint be placed on file. He said McPeake had virtually been fined $3,000 by loss of the liquor confiscated.

Selectman Albert T. White was the only witness. The case was heard by Associate Justice Charles J. Brown of the East Boston Court. Attorney Vahey and Melvin B. Hewett appeared for McPeake. The town of Revere was represented by Henry W. James.

Chairman White procured a search warrant two weeks ago and with the aid of the Metropolitan police raided the Pines Hotel. He claimed the Revere police refused to aid him. He made charges of neglect of duty and other things against Captain Claire P. Chaney, acting chief of police of Revere, but his colleagues on the board dismissed them by a vote of 4 to 1 at a meeting last week.

White contended that the "Lynaway Club" was organized merely to cloak the illegal sale of liquor at a beach hotel in a no-license town. He testified today:

"On Wednesday night, July 16, with Lieutenant Hagkins and a squad of twelve Metropolitan policemen, I went to the Pines Hotel. We found several hundred guests in the main dining room. They were being served with food and liquor and waiters were taking money."

Murray Calls for Coal Trust Facts

Would "Strike Direct Blow at High Cost of Living."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Representative Murray of Massachusetts, in resolutions introduced in the House today, calls upon the department of Commerce and Labor and the Interstate Commerce Commission to furnish complete information as to the capitalization, ownership and control of the Pennsylvania coal mines. Murray said:

I believe that the information secured by the adoption of this resolution will show the full effects of one of the most complete monopolies of a necessary of life that has ever existed and to point out the way by which Congress may act to remove at least a part of the evils, and thus strike one direct blow at the high cost of living.

Only Single Women for Chicago Police

Widows May Serve But Must Be Young and Husky.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The City Civil Service Commission will soon hold examinations for ten police women whom Mayor Harrison desires to guard girls at bathing beaches and playgrounds.

The commission has decided that unmarried women of generous proportions are the most desirable. The physical examinations will be conducted by a woman trainer from the University of Chicago girls' gymnasium. Widows are not barred, but they must be young and vigorous.

THREE JUDGES MOVE TO STOP SPEED MADNESS

Three judges in Boston courts waged war on the drunken or careless motorist today.

Judge Kenedy, in Newton, fined Fred M. Kitfield, thirty-four years old, of No. 46 Massachusetts avenue, a real estate dealer, $60 for driving an automobile while intoxicated. This means that Kitfield will lose his automobile license.

In Charlestown Judge Charles J. Sullivan sened a motorcyclist who knocked down a boy and then speeded away. The cyclist was held for the Grand Jury.

Judge Murray in Municipal Court came out today with a severe attack on drunken auto drivers, declaring that they should be jailed.

BRYAN SAYS POWERS AREN'T PRESSING U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Secretary of State Bryan, after a conference with President Wilson, today, issued a statement denying published reports regarding foreign intervention in Mexico. The statement follows:

"The statement which appeared in some of the morning newspapers to the effect that European governments are bringing pressure to bear on the United States to compel aggressive action in Mexico is entirely without foundation."

The House Foreign Affairs Committee today voted to ask Ambassador Wilson to appear before it and furnish a first-hand account of conditions in Mexico. He probably will be heard tomorrow.

Chairman Flood impressed the committee with the fact that the administration does not intend to recognize the Huerta government and that Secretary Bryan will continue his efforts to obtain an election in Mexico, which may settle the troubles of that republic.

The President and Secretary of State have been informed that negotiations in Mexico City have already progressed to such an extent that the resignation of President Huerta is imminent.

On the manifest of the steamship Mexico of the Ward line, which sailed yesterday from New York, for Vera Cruz, Mexico, were 150 cases of rifles and 625 cases of cartridges consigned to the military Governor of the State of Vera Cruz.

Acting on the request of Secretary of State Bryan, the Secretary of the Treasury today asked the house for $100,000 to pay the expenses of American refugees from Mexico.

Cardinal O'Connell Aids St. Clements

ROME, Aug. 1.—Cardinal O'Connell of Boston has provided funds for the draining of the lowest of the three churches of St. Clement, his titular church, in Rome, which has been full of water since 1870. It is estimated that the work will cost $14,000. It is hoped the church may be reopened on November 23, St. Clement's day.

Urge Regulation of Pasteurization

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Scientists of the dairy division of the Department of Agriculture today made public the result of a series of experiments in pasteurization of milk. As the result of the tests it is recommended that when milk intended for the market is pasteurized "it should be heated to about 145 degrees Fahrenheit and held at that temperature for thirty minutes."

SWIFT CALLS HIGH COST OF ICE UNJUST

Attorney-General Swift today made his first report on the results of his hunt for the Ice Trust and of his investigation to find out if the increase in the price of ice is justified. He declares that in many instances the raise is an injustice.

He hints at the existence of a trust when he declares that a remarkably small number of dealers handle half of the ice used in Massachusetts.

Most of the dealers give as their excuse for raising the price of ice, the Attorney-General says, the shortage in the supply, yet, the Attorney-General points out, retail prices have not been raised by dealers supplying 45 per cent. of the ice used in the State. These dealers are receiving but 20 per cent. of the supply they received last year. The Attorney-General says:

It is apparent that the mere shortage of supply is not conclusive evidence of justification of increase in the prices charged for this season.

Consideration of the individual dealers discloses a very wide variation in their present situation. For example, in Marlboro, the Lake William Ice Company shows a loss in its available supply of ice for this year of twelve per cent., but has not raised the price; the Brockton Ice & Coal Company shows a loss in its available supply of 22.8 per cent., but had not raised the price June 1. On the other hand, in Brockton, E. A. Washburn shows a gain in supply of 125 per cent.; in Lowell, Daniel Gage, controlling all the business in the city, shows a loss of supply of 20.7 per cent. but had not raised the price; also, in Haverhill, the Merrimack Ice Company has not raised the price although showing a loss in supply of 18.8 per cent.

In Cambridge, the Independent Ice Company shows a gain in available supply of 6.4 per cent., and the Winter Hill Ice Company, a gain in supply of 12 per cent.

Very large shortages in supplies are disclosed in some cases; for instance, in Chicopee, the Langwald Company shows a loss in supply of 91.0 per cent.; smaller companies in Fall River show a loss in supply of 55.1 per cent., and the Arctic Ice Company shows a loss in supply of 76.8 per cent. In Brighton J. R. Downing shows a gain in supply of 1 per cent. The Boston Ice Company shows a shortage of 20 per cent., but has not raised its price.

Colonel Scannell Bails Out Two Boys

Third Stage in Fight to Open Park on Sunday.

The third act of Colonel Roger F. Scannell's fight for the right to keep open his Rugby Park in Mattapan on Sunday, was staged today in the Dorchester court.

John Kelly of No. 44a Park street, Charlestown, and Thomas O'Brien of No. 14 Brighton street, Charlestown, were in court charged with kicking a football on Sunday. Found guilty and fined $5 each, they appealed, and Colonel Scannell himself furnished $100 bail for each of them.

"I want to kill the old Blue Laws," says Scannell. "I want to give the poor men who grind six days a week, and the women bending over wash tubs six days a week—one day when they can leave the tenements and get some fresh air."

Adams Strong for McCall as Governor

Declares Congressman Is Republican to Nominate.

Charles Francis Adams, of Boston and Lincoln, thinks that former Congressman Samuel W. McCall is the best man for Republican candidate for Governor. In a letter today to the Springfield Republican Mr. Adams says that the present Massachusetts problem is taxation and that he fails to see any reference to such an issue in the programs of the "prosaic self-styled candidates."

Mr. McCall, in Mr. Adams' belief, is the "one man whose experience, standing and temper of mind seem peculiarly to qualify him for the work necessary to be done."

Long May Figure in New Haven Changes

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 1.—The fact that General Manager Long of the Pennsylvania road stopped at the New Haven road offices today while en route for Maine in his private car with his family started a rumor that he might figure in the reorganization of the New Haven under President Elliott. In railroad circles today the name of Benjamin Campbell, vice-president of the New Haven road, in charge of traffic, was prominently mentioned today as a possibility for president of the New Haven road.

Axe-Wielding Thief Makes Third Break

Steals $200 Worth of Jewelry from Newtonville Resident.

The mysterious axe-wielding burglar is still on the rampage in Newtonville. He broke a rear door with his axe last night at the dwelling of Horton S. Allen at No. 45 Walnut place. He got $200 worth of jewelry. The only clew is a new mixed gray gold cap, size seven, with a label marked "Picadilly, London." It was found in the home of E. T. Trottter on Walnut street, Newtonville, the first house invaded. Alderman Fred M. Blanchard's nearby home on Clyde street was also entered, and six razors stolen. The police fear other homes vacated for the Summer have been ransacked.

TWO WIVES OF BIGAMIST NOW IN SAME HOME

The two girl wives of W. T. Southwick, sentenced to sixteen months imprisonment for bigamy and forgery, the first, Dorothy M. Allen, whom he deserted with a child, and the second, Mildred Morse, are united under one roof, at the Morse home at No. 49 Gray street, South End.

Additional charges, it is understood, will be brought against Southwick before he completes prison term.

Both Doris Allen and Miss Morse are united in a demand that Southwick receive a greater punishment for his action. Mrs. J. Morse, mother of Southwick's second wife, plans to lodge a complaint with the Federal government under the Mann white slave act. She declares that her daughter married Southwick in good faith and that he took her out of the State on a wedding trip through the South, an action which would render him, she says, liable under the act. She declared:

"My daughter was true to him. He only married her for one reason. He only pretended to love her. She was a good girl and I will not rest to let him get away with such a light punishment."

Mildred said:

"The judge did not understand. He could not have understood all the suffering that man has caused."

The particulars of Southwick's alleged divorce in Providence, from Annette Brennan are being looked up by the police.

ECZEMA SPREAD TO FACE AND NECK

And Ears. Itched and Burned So Scratching Made Sores. Great Disfigurement and Pain. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 2, Enosburg Falls, Vt. — "My eczema began by a pimple on my chin. It then spread to my face and neck and ears. The pimples were small and they festered. The eczema itched and burned so I scratched and it made raw sores. On account of the irritation I could not sleep much. It caused great disfigurement and it caused pain.

"I underwent two treatments but they failed to help me so I took two bottles of blood purifier but got no help. The trouble had lasted about two months. I then thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment a week my eczema began to heal. I washed the eczema with the Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment. One cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment cured me and at the end of five weeks I did not have a scar." (Signed) Miss Mabel Gilman, May 2, 1913.

It costs nothing to learn how pure, sweet, effective and satisfying Cuticura Soap and Ointment are in the treatment of poor complexions, red, rough hands, itching scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, because you need not buy them until you try them. Cuticura, Soap 25c, and Cuticura Ointment 50c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Turks Continue Pillage Campaign

SOFIA, Aug. 1.—The Turks are continuing their campaign of pillage in the country near Dedeagatch. All the men in the villages of Tartarlare, Solilu, Sarzia and Lachuna were killed when the Turkish troops entered those places.

A hitch in the peace negotiations between Bulgaria and the other Balkan States cropped up today. Bulgaria filed objections to the plan of Roumania to extend the Dobrudja border line. The Servian and Greece delegates and the Sofia Government started to thresh out the difficulty.

Justifies Assault Made by "Old Maid"

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Miss Winnie Flatley of the Colonial Hotel is thirty-one years of age. Mrs. Lizzie Varley of the same address has been calling Miss Flatley an "old maid."

Miss Flatley resented the name by smiting Mrs. Varley with a chair. In court Miss Flatley was "discharged."

"I think this sort of provocation justifies any assault up to murder," said the judge.

SECRET DRAWER NOW PIVOT IN GREAT JEWEL MYSTERY

This Jap, early reports said, was searched by clerk of Courts Caswell when the latter was called in the day the theft was discovered. The Jap—"second butler"—knew the secret of the spring which released the jewel drawer. A Japanese dragon—gold and green and yellow and red—was one of the gems not taken by the thief.

"The butler came to us through a friend," Mrs. Hanan said, "and I am confident of his entire innocence."

Jap Knew Secret.

In discussing the secret spring, Mrs. Hanan said that besides herself, her husband and her son, none but her two maids, the housekeeper and the Jap butler knew its secret.

She told the story of the theft in detail for the first time today, and it was in this interview that she accidentally admitted she believed a woman of her acquaintance to be the thief.

Rector at Lunch.

Mrs. Hanan said:

"I had at luncheon today the Rev. Edward Raffery, rector of St. Philomena's Roman Catholic Church, and Father McHugh, his curate. I hope to have a part in such an entertainment for the benefit of St. Philomena's as that given for St. Peter's by the Sea last Friday night when the jewels disappeared. During the luncheon Father Raffery said to me:

"'You will get your jewels back, Mrs. Hanan, I'm sure of it.'

"'Yes, I know I will,' I replied, and in some surprise he asked me why I said that.

"'Faith,' I answered, 'I have faith that I will,' and I have that faith. It won't let me believe anything else. I don't believe that any woman's conscience would allow her to keep for long my jewels. They will simply have to be given back and I don't believe that when they are there will be any mystery remaining.

"Why do you say 'woman's' conscience?" Mrs. Hanan was asked. She hesitated for a moment, then replied:

Eliminates Household.

"Why, perhaps because I am a woman. I might as well have said 'man,' though. A man's conscience might not respond as a woman's would. I want you to be very sure that I have no one in mind. Mary, my first maid, is a mulatto, who has been with me for twenty-one years. Nellie, my second maid, has been with me for more than half that time, and there is no other woman in the household whom I have not known intimately for at least that long.

"Of the men there is only one who has not been long in our service. This is the second butler, who came to us six months ago, bearing the recommendation of a member of the New York Yacht Club who is one of Mr. Hanan's close friends.

"I can't tell you what the detectives think about the case. I ask them and they say this and that, or tell me they hope to have something to say soon. I don't know any more than you do what any one of the five has found, or what his theory is. But this I do know—they have fairly grilled every servant and not one of them has failed to come through it as he should.

Telling how the theft was discovered, she said:

When I left my room, there were several articles of jewelry about, and I told my maid to pick up everything and put it away and lock the drawer and the door of the bathroom.

My maid is a half-breed negro and Indian and has been with me twenty-one years. The second maid, a white woman, says that after she had carried my wraps down to the automobile and returned to my room to clear up things the first maid told her she had put away all the jewelry.

When I returned and went to my room, my maid was standing at the bureau. Mary said:

"Oh, Mrs. Hanan, if you didn't chance to wear your diamond rings they are gone."

Theft Discovered.

"What do you mean," I cried, and she told me of having put away the jewels that had been laid out, but that I had not worn; of having gone to the spring for water, as she does every night; of coming back and seeing that the secret drawer was open and of seeing that some of its usual contents were missing.

She gave a long rigamarole but I didn't stop to listen. I tore open the drawer and saw that most of the jewels I had brought down with me were gone.

I wear but little jewelry here and I had brought as much as I did because if it had not been for Mr. Hanan's illness I should have given a reception on August 8 for Governor and Mrs. Pothier, at which there would have been a thousand people present.

Declines to Name Value.

I made an inventory today of what remained and it is not pleasant to reflect that very little of what I brought down with me remains. No, I don't tell you what the value of it is. I wouldn't tell my most intimate friend, for I would be ashamed to have it known that I brought with me so much and then let it stay in a drawer of my dressing table, when I had a safe in the house.

The only persons knowing the secret of the drawer lock are my maids, the housekeeper and the second butler, a Japanese, I have had but six months.

Further evidence secured today tended to establish the fact that a conspiracy among the servants of the wealthy Summer residents was responsible for the thefts.

Trailed Brown Graduate.

Frank Lambert of the Western Detective Agency of Providence picked up the trail of this servant plot. He began a watch of a man who lives near Providence, a Brown graduate, whom he suspected of having organized the thieves.

It was learned today that late Friday—AFTER THE HANAN ROBBERY—a dark, dimly lit automobile left the Pier and sped toward Providence.

The car was seen at different spots on the way.

It was seen in Providence.

A car corresponding to its description was seen standing in front of the Brown graduate's home.

And this car when it left Narragansett contained a maid, a private coachman and a cook employed in the homes of two wealthy families here.

Very Significant.

Mr. Lambert said today: "The significance of this discovery cannot be overestimated." He admitted that four of his men are watching the Brown man.

In line with the "servant gang" idea, a Burns man said today:

"We have changed our detective adage to keep up with the times. We no longer say in these jewel cases:

"'Look for the woman.'

"Nowadays we say:

"'Look for the English maid or butler—if not in the robbed household, in one nearby.'"

The managers of the Burns agency believe it possible that an organized band of English servant-crooks is stripping the rich cottagers of all their pretty junk. The detectives say they have come to the conclusion by a process of pure reasoning. In the course of that reasoning they look up files and photographs. For persons who depend upon deduction only they have an amazing amount of canned information.

One Man Heads Gang.

"One man is at the head of this gang," said the Burns detective. "He brings the servant-crooks in this country, he places them in the employ of rich homes, they are subject to a process of steam-cleaning, and he stage manages the operations. Then he disposes of the stolen goods, and as well ate his plans laid that only in one instance were they recovered.

"He ought to be successful," added the detective. "He gives enough thought to his business to be successful with an independent refinery in S. O. territory. He plans his operations two years ahead."

The actual theft at Mrs. John H. Hanan's home was put through, it is now believed, by a man and a woman working together. These people had been told by servants just where to go and what to do. Further, the woman was familiar with the house and the room. Her companion, in the detective's opinion, was a society man. A Burns detective said today:

"I would be willing to wager that the man and possibly the woman who went into the Hanan house were in evening clothes."

Involve Society People.

All the facts point to a widespread conspiracy, involving two or perhaps four society folks, the Brown graduate, and at least a dozen servants in different families here.

At the Rumsey home the detectives believe three thieves did the work, having been told the details of the plan of the house by servants. The thieves were two men and a woman. The two men did the work, and the woman waited in an automobile outside the house.

This automobile was seen in front of the house. Mrs. Daniel Marvin and others saw it and called, "Who are you?" The occupants answered, "None of your business," and cranked up and speeded away.

The three servants made their trip to the Brown graduate's home Friday night. The car was seen leaving the Pier at 10:45. The robbery had been committed between nine and ten.

The car was seen passing through Trinity square, Providence, at one o'clock Saturday morning and was back at Narragansett Pier an hour and twenty minutes later. It was learned today a maid employed in the Hanan household was missing during the time the movements of the automobile were traced.

Motor Boat Used.

The detectives believe that the thieves used a motor boat as part of their equipment.

It has been found that on the night of July 24 a dark man, speaking with a very marked French accent, registered at one of the fashionable hotels. He carried a Gladstone bag. It was noted that he did not appear about the hotel during the night time, but went out into the Summer colony.

Sunday morning the stranger with the French accent, carrying a Gladstone bag was seen to enter a powerful long gray motorboat at the slip of the Narragansett Pier Reading Room Association. He put out to sea apparently at once.

After he had gone—an hour later in fact—the Summer home of Percy Haughton, on Little Gould Island, near Newport, was robbed of $10,000 worth of portable valuables, belonging to the Haughtons, Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt and Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames. It is believed that the stranger looted the Haughton home through the use of his motorboat.

The detectives have found that the stranger proceeded in his motorboat down Long Island Sound until he was within easy striking distance of New York. Then he landed and entered New York by train. It is possible that he took with him but only the Rumsey and Hanan gems, but many of the others in the $250,000 series of robberies.

Net Drawing About Servant.

The stranger made one mistake which led the hotel people to recall many things in connection with him. He failed to pay his bill when he left hurriedly in a motor boat. Had he done so it is more than probable that the hotel management would have forgotten most of the small incidents connected with his arrival, stay and departure. As it is they have remembered enough to be able to give valuable assistance to the private detectives.

George E. Dixon, chief of the detectives employed by Mrs. Hanan, said today the net was slowly drawing about a man employed in the Hanan home.

The clew followed by detectives in New York today is said to point to a large jewelry establishment as the clearing house for the gang and a representative of this firm in Boston is said to be the much sought "fence."

"Comic Opera Sleuths."

The presence of the detectives in her house is another aspect of the case, considered a joke at first, that is fast becoming a source of displeasure to Mrs. Hanan. When asked if the jewels were insured she said:

"There is a $5,000 insurance upon them, taken out when we went to Europe. I do not know whether this was for the trip or a permanent insurance. If it is I will take the $5,000 and devote it to the training of detectives.

"It seems to me these comic opera detectives are all at sea. I do not believe they know where they actually stand. One of them said to me that he was going to New York. That is the only report I have had from them. I do not place much faith in detectives. I believe in a higher course—the Golden Rule; and through my belief I am confident my jewels will return to me. The notoriety of this whole affair has caused me much uneasiness, and together with my husband's illness has caused me much worry."

Mr. Rumsey with his wife went to the Polo Field where the Army played the Sandpipers and Point Judith played the Leopards in the national tournament, and it was between the games that he said:

We have given up hope that any of the jewels will ever be recovered except through clues that may develop as the pieces are broken up and individual stones may be recognized. The work of the detectives here has resulted in nothing beyond establishing to our satisfaction, as well as theirs, that the thieves came and went by automobile. There has been no other discovery that seems to have any bearing on the case.

Estimate Too Low.

At the same time we have found that the first estimate we placed upon the jewels was quite too low. The necklace, which was of course the principal piece, might have been duplicated three years ago for $60,000, but it certainly could not be at the present time. This, with more accurate knowledge of the original worth of the other pieces, makes $120,000 as the total value a really conservative figure. I blame no one but myself for the affair. I should have known better than to bring, or to allow to be brought, any such jewels as these to an isolated, flimsy cottage in a district where there is no police protection of any character. Practically barred out of the houses by the attitude of the victims of the robberies, Chief James D. Caswell of the local police is conducting a separate investigation and is devoting most of his time attempting to find the striped limousine seen near Gunning Rock on the night of the Rumsey robbery.

"I am not working with the detectives," he declared today. "I am making my own investigation. Had I been called while the matter was hot something might have been accomplished. As it is, the affair is getting cold and will soon be a dead matter.

"I have given instructions to my men that if they see a striped limousine pass about the town to place its driver under arrest."

The pier is in practically a state of siege. There is a fleet of motor boats manned by Burns men and Pinkertons in the harbor. There is an automobile "troop" on the fashionable frontier. There are detectives everywhere.

The robberies and the hunt of the detectives are not without their amusing features. Besides the men employed on the case, at least a score of professional and amateur detectives have arrived in town in search of employment. Some of these have wayside acquaintances of the families and have attempted to obtain introductions on the strength of their claimed ability to ferret out criminals. These men have not hesitated to criticise the methods of the men engaged and several of them feel sure that they could solve the riddle forthwith.

Dances Tango Despite Theft.

In spite of the robberies the social whirl of Narragansett Pier is still in progress. At the Casino Mrs. Hanan with an escort danced the Tango before the diners at the famous resort.

After this she went to the Point Judith Polo Club grounds with the crowd of ultra exclusive residents. There Charles C. Rumsey was engaged in playing polo on the Cooperstown team. The two were the centre of attraction.

Talbot Hanan enlivened the friends and guests by dancing a turkey trot with Miss Florence Perkins, his fiancee. Among the guests at the Hanan tents were Mr. and Mrs. John Benjamin Irwin of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander of New York, Miss Irene Wren of Bridgeport, Ct., Miss Florence Perkins and Talbot Hanan.

Who Pressed the Spring in Hanan Gem Drawer?

The detectives investigating the theft of $150,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. John H. Hanan have centred their investigation about the secret drawer from which they were stolen.

The drawer was opened by a secret spring. To reach this spring one had to remove a drawer below the secretly-locked one and press upward.

Mrs. Hanan gives this list of those who knew the secret of the drawer:

Mrs. Hanan,
Mr. Hanan,
Talbot Hanan,
Two Maids,
The Housekeeper,
The Second Butler.

A famous scientist condemns the light bottle

We reprint herewith an extract from an opinion rendered by a famous scientist showing that beer in light bottles can not remain pure.

"Beer bottles should be manufactured from reddish-brown glass, inasmuch as same will to a much higher degree than any other kind of glass, minimize the influence of the rays of light on the quality of beer, and will protect the latter against acquiring the disagreeable taste (Sonnengeschmack) due to the chemical action of light. . . . .

"In white and green glass bottles the beer is most affected by the action of the light. Such bottles are, therefore, absolutely inappropriate and should never be employed by brewers."

(Signed) Prof. Dr. F. Schonfeld.

'KEEP FAITH IN MEN,' MRS. HEYE URGES

Despite her divorce experience, Mrs. Blanche Heye of Long Beach, L. I., and former resident of Wellesley, praises men, and recommends girls to marry and not to get divorced until forced to.

Mrs. Heye also raps both Harvard and Columbia College, saying:

"My boy will be sent to college, but I don't think it will be either Harvard or Columbia. Mr. Heye, you know, went to Columbia, and I have ambitions for my boy to be a different kind of man."

Why Mrs. Heye lambsted Harvard in her insinuations against Columbia, she did not explain, unless her own girlhood life at Wellesley gave her an unfavorable observation of Harvard youths.

In regard to men in general, Mrs. Heye says:

"My message to all women is not to lose faith in men as a whole, in spite of any single embittering or disheartening experience. I feel now that there are as many sterling men in the world as I ever did, and I advise people to get married and not get divorced until every attempt at patching up things has failed."

So far as Mr. Heye goes, Mrs. Heye feels "amiable" toward him. She would not decline a dinner invitation, for instance, just because she knew he had been invited, too.

Man Wanted for Killing Surrenders

LAWRENCE, Aug. 1.—John Santucci of No. 117 Oak street, for whom the police have been searching since July 29, gave himself up at the police station today to answer to a charge of manslaughter in fatally shooting Francisco Ramonette at a wedding where both were guests. Santucci has been in Boston. He pleaded not guilty in court later.

Five Motorists Fined in Malden

Two autoists and three motorcyclists paid fines in Malden today. It cost George E. Sait of Arlington $10 to drive across a grass plot, and Thorndike B. Howe of Gloucester paid $10 for a thirty-five-mile-an-hour burst of speed. Their motorcycles went too fast, so Courtenay C. Wright of Malden, Arthur G. Pierce of Malden and Robert Turbin of Melrose each paid $5.

FOSS COUNCIL MEMBER HITS SMITH PARDON

Edward G. Frothingham of Haverhill, who was the only member of the Executive Council to oppose the pardon recently granted Harry Smith, the convicted confidence man who robbed an aged New Hampshire farmer of all his money, today declared such pardons are an encouragement to men of the Coleman-Keliher type.

Mr. Frothingham, who adds his opinions to those of the Boston police, who declare the pardon was a "political one," and those of Captain Armstrong in particular, who says the streets must be kept free of confidence men, said today:

"I firmly believe that we should discourage the granting of pardons such as this one.

"Of course I know that Smith has a family which is suffering. That is all very well, and I have every sympathy for the wife and the children, who are the innocent sufferers always in a case of this sort.

"But what of the public? What of the community which must be protected from men of the Smith type? I certainly agree with the statements of Captain Alonzo Armstrong of police headquarters. It is an encouragement to criminals of the Coleman-Keliher type to see one of their sort go free."

Woman Whips 'Dude.'

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 1.—"The women of Jersey City must be protected from dressed-up dudes who insult them in the streets," said Judge O'Brien in imposing a $25 fine upon Irving Bendar. His eye was discolored, his nose swollen and his lip cut, the result of his encounter with Mrs. Viola Brophy.

Declares Pomeroy's Case Is Hopeless

"An Incurable Criminal," Says Dr. McLaughlin.

Jesse Pomeroy is an incurable criminal. His mental capacity is the same today as when he was first confined in the Charlestown State Prison for murder, thirty-seven years ago. He will be a hopeless mental defective until he dies.

This is the opinion of Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, the prison physician, given today.

Dr. McLaughlin further declared that the despatch from Philadelphia stating that recent tests had been made on the noted murderer by placing cats and dogs in his cell were nonsensical. This dispatch positively asserted that Pomeroy had exercised a fiendish ingenuity in the torture of animals placed in his cell.

"That's all bosh!" insisted Dr. McLaughlin. "As a matter of fact, Pomeroy's mental defectiveness is so pronounced, and his condition so unchangeable, that there is no necessity of subjecting him to any special test. His condition is the same today as when he was first imprisoned here. It will never change."

Chinese Rebels' Gunboat Taken

Gen. Lung Defeats Secessionists and Occupies Shiuhing.

HONGKONG, Aug. 1.—General Lung, commander of the Government forces in the Province of Kwangsi, proceeding against the secessionists, has occupied the city of Shiuhing, on the West River, and captured the gunboat Taikong, which was in the hands of the rebels.

Communication with Shanshui has been cut and trains stopped. Troops have been hurried to oppose the advance of General Lung's forces, but the city of Canton is panic-stricken. There is an immense exodus from the city and all business has been suspended.

President Gomez Is Made Dictator

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 1.—In consequence of the outbreak of the revolution in Venezuela and the invasion of the country by forces under the leadership of Ex-President Cipriano Castro, the Federal Council has constitutionally authorized President Juan Vicente Gomez to assume dictatorial powers until the movement is crushed.

Big Strike Grows in Spain.

MADRID, Aug. 1.—The textile industry in Spain is almost at a standstill today. Twenty thousand men are out for higher wages. The strike is spreading and troops are rushing to the strike zone to crush any uprisings.

A Comfortable and Happy Trip to California, in Good Company and at Very Small Cost

A trip to California with a select party in charge of a well-informed conductor, who goes all the way through and is paid for his ability to relieve you of care and make you "feel at home."

A wonderfully interesting trip, going through Colorado and Salt Lake City. A thousand wonders to see.

A wonderfully comfortable trip made in a Pullman Tourist Sleeping car. Clean as wax, and the price of all so small, that most anybody can go.

Just call or write and let me tell you all about the Personally Conducted, low fare parties to California that have helped to make the "Burlington Route" service famous.

Does It Take Two Halves to Make a Whole?

WE'RE going to dispute the general impression which prevails that it takes two halves to make a whole. In fact, we ruined that impression the opening day of our Half-Price Sale. Did we not give for half-price a perfect Hilton Suit, having the stinging style, the strong value, the smooth tailoring and the character and strength on which we have built our success.

Underneath the new half-price value was the old Hilton value which results from selling direct to you. You can never pay too high a price for HILTON CLOTHES—NEVER. Their value is as noticeable as a broken nose. Think, then, what the Half-Price means. The cut and color you desire, the correctness and the sureness of quality you need.

KING TELLS OF "UPPER 30" IN PRISON.

The late Cardenio F. King, whose "Secrets of Prison Life" is being published daily in the AMERICAN, found that there is a "Four Hundred" in Charlestown State Prison, just as well as outside of that big institution.

"Rowland" was one of the "ultra-fashionables," so to speak, of the prison's exclusive set.

How King was taken up and introduced around "Rowland's" select coterie is related in today's instalment.

It is an illuminating chapter on human nature.

CHAPTER IV.

The Upper Crust of Prison Society.

Copyright, 1913, by Cardenio King.

CHARLESTOWN STATE PRISON, January 16, 1909. —For a little more than an hour each Saturday afternoon the 800 odd prisoners who comprise the "detained population" of this Walled City are allowed the freedom of the big yard—a sort of oblong court entirely surrounded and closed in by prison buildings with the exception of three narrow gaps.

On passing into this yard for the first time today I was taken in tow by a fellow prisoner whose reputation as a successful man of affairs in other days was known to me, and I was both pleased and pained to grasp his hand here. I found him to be a most delightful companion, genial and gentlemanly in the best sense of the word, and before the afternoon was over I had been introduced to many others who reflected in their manner and appearance the splendid environment from which they had been snatched by the ruthless hand of the law.

During this weekly recreation hour in the yard the prisoners are allowed to mingle without restraint. So my friend and I, whom I shall call Rowland, fell in with the tide of gray-suited humanity and moved about with the ebb and flow—jostling our way among all manner of reputed "bad men." Rowland introduced me to those whom he thought it proper for me to know. He explained that here, as on the outside, a man is known by the company he keeps, and his social status fixed accordingly. The upper crust of prison society—the creme de la creme—I learned upon inquiry, is limited in membership to thirty or forty prisoners of the better class. The requisites for entree into this coterie are education, previous good surroundings and present gentlemanly deportment and a scrupulous care as to associates. The crime for which a man has been convicted does not enter into the equation one way or the other. Among those whose names appear in this exclusive Social Register are murderers serving life sentences, while not a few are former town treasurers, lawyers, physicians, and others who held responsible positions of trust and honor in the communities from which they come. Meeting and mingling with these men I've been tremendously impressed with the terrible price the law demands of those upon whom its heavy hand is laid, for most of these men knew naught of prison ways until their arrival here. . . . And yet for one misstep, perhaps an act committed in a moment of passion with crime furthest from the mind in calm moments of reason and judgment—one unfortunate step, they have been condemned to this awful life for a term of years. And oh, merciful God! were that all—did the term of years, however many those years might be, end the sentence, then one might hope. But "leave behind all hope, ye who enter here." Because when the time comes for these men to go out into the world again—that world from whence they came—they are weighted down with the memory of these dreary years, and the prison mark will be upon them. There is no gainsaying the fact that "once a convict, always a convict or an ex-convict." One big, fundamental principle in the administration of law which stands out as a wicked injustice is the awful truth that when society demands a penalty for what is decreed as a crime, the unfortunate against whom such demand is directed pays the bill in full and so long as he lives continues to pay; and it is not unusual that his children are called upon to continue the payments even after he is dead.

And yet I suppose our system of civilization is so crude—so little removed from the medieval and barbarous—that nothing can be done to remedy the defect so great and glaring, and for long years, centuries yet to come, governments will continue to exact perpetual tolls in prison and out from all persons so unfortunate as to run afoul of the criminal statutes "made and provided." In my own case, a sentence of "ten to fourteen years" is enough to crush and grind to pulp the heart of a Titan, and yet, soul-searing as it is, hopeless as it looks, away off in the beclouded future I can see an ending of it all so far as confinement is concerned, yet an Omnipotent God cannot point to the day when the weight of prison will be entirely lifted from my shoulders. The contemplation of such a condition is enough to drive to madness any man in whom there yet remains a single spark of genuine manhood. And it is the manhood within the condemned is what sustains him.

That jostling about the yard, rubbing elbows and chatting on terms of equality with all classes of criminals, while not to be especially recommended for weak and nervous people, was interesting and exhilarating to me. It is, indeed, a rare privilege to mingle in this way, with a State's choicest collections of "bad men." For the most part they are a good-natured bunch, apparently accepting, philosophically, their appointed lots, and making the best of an unfortunate situation. To all the crowd I failed to see a single man with the appearance and features of the criminal as he is almost invariably pictured in newspapers and magazines. The prisoners here, while heterogenous in complexion, are still men and differ in facial expression and general demeanor from men walking the streets and working in offices and shops on the outside not at all. The only difference is that the average prisoner has been unfortunate, while the man outside has not. Of course the utterly depraved man is different anyway—whether inside or outside.

My mind recalls the lines:

"Stone walls do not a prison make Nor iron bars a cage."

And while I am decidedly of the opinion that the stone walls here do make a prison and the iron bars cages, I am impressed with the fact that neither prison walls nor iron bars make a man anything different from what he actually is.

I do not mean to say that prison life is not naturally brutalizing in its effects. I am very sure such an existence can only tend to fatten and smother ambition and stifle the finer emotions. Force men to live as wild beasts and they are pushed down by Nature's own law. In the midst of such environment ideals crumble and the things we cherish wither and die. And yet outwardly the old self—the man that was—is put forward, while under the garb of gray there throbs a bleeding heart and surging thoughts of hope and despair. Even thus early in my experience and brief acquaintance with convicts I am able to detect beneath the mask and veneer of cheerfulness an ominous note which can only be understood as indicating that something is radically and fundamentally wrong with the system.

This phase of prison life I shall endeavor to probe deeply during my sojourn here, with the hope that in after years I may be able to render a substantial service to humanity in pointing out a remedy for some of the grave wrongs which are so thoughtlessly heaped upon the unfortunate.

On more mature thought I realize that what I am writing now is of necessity only the disconcerted ramblings of a novice—an embryo convict who has not yet come back to earth from the ethereal journey upon which all new comers are sent immediately after their first arrival. However, I can only express my feelings from day to day and it may be that these early impressions, which I am trying to set down in some detail, will prove of great value.

This is Saturday night. All is quiet. In another half hour the lights will be shut off. The evening I've spent reading, and writing these notes. Two or three "trusties" stopped by for a chat but they did not linger long seeing I had something to occupy my mind. Already I can hear sounds of snoring in cells nearby. Lucky convicts! If their sleep is not of the just, it is at least sound, and I hope, peaceful. No doubt some will be haunted with ugly visions before morning, but when the "rising gong" is sounded and the barred doors swing open, they will come forth showing an untroubled face. Weighted down with trouble, they will put on their masks of cheerfulness. That, I have already learned, is a way convicts have. And if men and women in the big outside world would only emulate this splendid trait of the "condemned and despised" how much better the big, outside world would be!

Tomorrow being Sunday I shall for the first time sit with a congregation of prisoners, and worship God according to the statutes of the Commonwealth.

It will be a novel experience!

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

THE LAST DAY!

Clearance Sale REGAL SHOES

For Men and Women

On Saturday night at ten o'clock ends the greatest shoe sale this city has ever known.

A mere reduction in prices does not necessarily represent a bargain. A bargain is a quality-standard article offered at a fraction of its original established price. The retail price branded in the shoe by the manufacturer AT THE FACTORY represents quality-insurance and price-protection. A reduction on an article marked "sterling" means something to you.

Regal Shoes—world-known, quality-standard and price-established—at the reductions shown below are bargains in the clearest and clearest meaning of the word.

As the result of our announcement, the first day's sales in our sixteen stores in New York City averaged sixteen pairs a minute. Our Boston stores averaged one pair a minute. Some customers bought two, three, five and even ten pairs, and the tremendous impetus of the first day's business has continued to the end—by satisfied buyers telling their friends.

To secure sufficient stock to bolster up our broken sizes for this Saturday, we closed our Clearance Sale in twenty Regal Stores last Saturday and transferred to this city the remaining stock.

We have repriced the shoes and moved a great many styles included in Lots 3 and 4 into Lots 1 and 2.

The sizes are broken; the prices are broken. But the value remains the same.

SALE PRICES

Lot 1	61 styles of $3.50 to $5.00 High and Low Regals	$1.45

CAINE'S NEW NOVEL WINS BIG HOME VICTORY

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The publication today of Hall Caine's new novel, "The Woman They Gavest Me," which has been appearing serially in Hearst's Magazine in the United States, has developed an amazing sensation in the book trade here.

It is nothing more nor less than the unprecedented action of an author in boycotting all the principal libraries. The chief medium of supply for books, the leading libraries, yesterday did not have a single copy to lend or sell.

Forthwith the week the Libraries Association raised the question of the morality of the novel, but decided to supply any private demand for the book, while excluding it from lending libraries.

So great was the latter demand that they sent orders for thousands on that score alone.

"This is a libel on the morality of my book," said the author. "If it is not fit for general circulation, it is not fit for any circulation. Therefore, I will not permit my publisher to deliver one copy of it to members of this association until they assure me that it shall be put into general circulation."

In the meantime Hall Caine telegraphed to distinguished clergymen of all denominations and many eminent men, who advised everybody to read it because it deals with a great social problem.

The Libraries Association tried to hold out, but their subscribers clamored for copies, and the end of it all is that they gave Caine the necessary assurance it shall be put into general circulation.

Claim Rifle's Life Should Be 10 Years

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The present model of rifle used by the United States Army should have a life of usefulness of at least ten years, in the opinion of the ordnance officers, and a determined effort is being made to prevent the condemnation of thousands of rifles that are turned in as worn out when they are really serviceable.

Nashua, N. H., Ice Man Refuses Offer

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 1.—George E. Balcom stated that yesterday he refused an offer of 40 cents a hundred for his entire supply of ice, which is a higher price than he charges delivering at retail in this city. Mr. Balcom is the only dealer in Nashua.

REP. FREDERICK W. SCHLAPP OF LAWRENCE

This is a Democrat who recognizes a Democratic principle when it is placed before him. To him party pledges are more than idle words, and when his party declared in its State platform "WE ARE OPPOSED TO THE OWNERSHIP OR CONTROL OF OUR STREET RAILWAYS BY THE STEAM RAILROADS, AND BELIEVE THAT IT SHOULD GO NO FARTHER IN THIS COMMONWEALTH," he placed his solemn pledge to the people above the interests of the New Haven Railroad, above the urging of its pernicious lobby, and voted against turning over more than half the street railrways of this Commonwealth to the mercies of the New Haven Railroad.

If there had been forty-five more Democrats like Mr. Schlapp in the Legislature instead of the forty-five traitors to party principles, the progress of the railroad monopoly in this Commonwealth would have been halted and the Democratic party would in return have been recognized as the real party of the people.

200 ON BOSTON TUBERCULOSIS WAITING LIST

Dr. Simon F. Cox, superintendent of the Boston Hospital for Consumptives, told the legislative committee that is investigating tuberculosis that Boston's facilities are inadequate for caring for those afflicted with the disease. There are 200 on the waiting list.

The $400,000 institution at Mattapan, which some Boston physicians say is a model for the whole country, is being overcrowded by the disease. Dr. Cox said:

"We have 210 beds, everyone of them full, and there is a waiting list of 200 clamoring to get in. We hire 78 beds in the Holy Ghost Hospital in Cambridge. The opening of the new children's pavilion here at Mattapan about September 1, with 60 beds, will not relieve the pressure much. We shall bring over 25 children from the Holy Ghost Hospital, but those 25 beds will be filled, immediately by adults. Besides we are providing for 40-day campers in tents, but this institution is intended for advanced cases who cannot stand permanent outdoor life in extreme weather.

"Our 25 visiting nurses from the dispensary are calling on 2,000 cases for whom there is no hospital accommodation. There were 263 deaths last year, and 54, at their request, were sent home to die."

Brandeis Refuses to Declare for Bird

Lauds Bull Moose Leader, but Withholds Vote Plans.

Louis D. Brandeis today paid high tribute to Charles S. Bird, Progressive candidate for Governor, but declined to say whether he would vote for Mr. Bird. Mr. Brandeis would not commit himself politically. He said:

I have never stated that I would support Charles S. Bird for Governor. I have the highest admiration for Mr. Bird personally. He has much ability. He has had wide experience and is a rare public spirit, and is, I think, fairly honest. My active interest in Massachusetts' public affairs is limited to consideration of economics and social progress. These engage my sole attention.

A Red Tag Sale of genuine 50c shirts and drawers at 35c.

This Red Tag Sale is one of the measures we employ in weeding out all odds and ends of seasonable merchandise that we do not want to find on our shelves when the Fall season gets here.

The way we do it is this: Any line of goods that is broken in size, quantity or otherwise—any light weight or seasonable goods—any discontinued styles or other merchandise that we are anxious for one reason or another to get out of the way—we Red Tag, at a price that insures immediate clearance. The original white price ticket remains on the article—the Red Tag shows the reduction at which it is to be sold. In this way you see exactly how much you save.

STAR ATHLETES IN CALEDONIAN MEET SATURDAY

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

The annual track and field meet of the Boston Caledonian Club, which takes place at Caledonian Grove tomorrow, should prove to be one of the best amateur and professional track meets held around Boston this Summer. There are nine open handicap events and nearly every athlete in Greater Boston has entered.

Howard Drew will be the star attraction in the sprints, while the mile run will have Power and Marcoux as the star contestants. Power should win if Handicapper McGrath is not too liberal with Marcoux, for the Tech professor is in fine shape and can run a good mile on any track.

It will be the first appearance of either of these men since the A. A. U. meet in Chicago, where Marcoux won the junior national mile race and Powers ran second to Taber the following day.

Silva is Confident.

In addition to this race, the three-mile scratch event should prove a thriller. Starting on the mark with Silva will be Maguire, of Harvard, and a few other prominent athletes. Silva is the New England three and five-mile champion and he declares that he will win, as he is running in good shape and has trained hard for this race.

The quarter-mile run appears to be anybody's race. The scratch men will never have a chance to get through on that track, owing to the handicaps and the crowding by the limit men. The half-mile event will prove different. In this race the low mark men have an opportunity of passing the lower entrants. Burke will be the strongest entry in this race, but he is liable to receive a surprise, as several other good half-milers have intentions of entering.

Barwise in High Jump.

Barwise should capture the running high jump. He is jumping better than ever before and bids fair to clear six feet five inches before the Summer season closes.

Up to the present time no great athletes have entered the pole vault, and this appears to be a toss-up between the limit men, as it is an event that is contested little in A. A. U. competition.

In addition to the regular events, the one-mile relay race between the B. A. A. and the Irish-American A. C. of New York will be one of the best contests seen around the Hub for years. The New York team will be reinforced by the addition of Melvin W. Sheppard, who will undoubtedly run anchor.

Sheppard is running as good as ever and, as this is his first appearance outdoors in this city since the Olympic tryouts, his entry will be watched with interest. The Irish-American team appears to have a good chance of winning the relay race, as they will have the services of other good men in Coyle and Hayes.

Benton Recovering; Out for the Season

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 1.—Rube Benton, pitcher for the Cincinnati National team, is slowly recovering from injuries which he sustained early Wednesday morning when his motorcycle had a head-on collision with a street car.

At the hospital today it was said by his attending physician that he was still in a serious condition, and would not be able to leave for more than a month, and that he would not be able to participate in any more games this season, even though he recovered at that time.

Turville Will Meet Best in M'Dougall

Donald MacDougall of Newark, world's amateur champion and record holder, will arrive at Revere today for his special match race tomorrow night. On that occasion MacDougall will make his first appearance in Massachusetts and his opponent will be Willie Turville of Revere, who is rated as the best amateur sprinter in this section.

MacDougall's great record rides have been made in handicaps. For the quarter mile he has the record at 28 1-5 seconds, while equals the professional record held by Frank Kramer. His third of a mile in 57 2-5 seconds equals the professional mark of Paddy Hehir.

Fort Riley Team Shows Polo Skill

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 1.—Two games were played in the semi-finals of the Point Judith tournament for the Army and Navy cups, the Army team, which hails from the mounted service school at Fort Riley, Kansas, defeating the Point Judith Sandpipers, 12¾ to 10¾, while the Cooperstown Leopards defeated the Point Judith team, 11¾ to 7.

The Army team gave the best display of team work seen in any of the games here this season. They rode daringly and handled their ponies with wonderful skill.

RED SOX ARE OUT FOR REVENGE

The Red Sox will be given another opportunity to catch up with the White Sox today, provided that they beat the Naps and the Chicagos drop their game to the Yankees. The White Sox have been up against it in every sense of the word lately. Out of their last six games they have been unable to win one. Four defeats were administered to them by the Red Sox, and the other two by the Yanks. A victory for the Sox today and a defeat for the Chicago team means a tie for fourth place, the fractions being slightly in favor of the White-Hosed wearers.

Today will be Elks' day at the Fenway Park, and 1,200 members of the local lodges will sit in a special reserved section of the grand stand. They will be guests of President McAleer. The Mission Church Band of sixty pieces will furnish the music.

Collins Is Due Today.

Ray Collins will perform for the Red Sox on the mound today, and with any kind of decent support he should give the Naps a hard run. It was only last Sunday that Collins drubbed the Clevelands, holding them to a few scattered hits.

Although Vean Gregg pitched two innings of the first game against the Red Sox yesterday, Manager Birmingham will, probably send him back at the Sox today, and, opposing Collins, he should furnish a pretty pitching duel. Gregg's arm seems to be all right, judging by his work yesterday. He was a little wild, but this was probably caused by his long layoff.

Lajoie Hasn't Changed.

Boston "fans" gave Larry Lajoie a fine reception, and he responded by some very clever fielding and good stickwork. He fielded in his usual graceful style, and his work was all that could be asked of a player.

Lajoie was benched only a short time ago because "he had slowed up in the field," so Cleveland reports said at the time. The local fandom, however, failed to see this yesterday. True, he had but few hard chances, but what he did have he accepted with ease.

Some annoying remarks, which are to be expected, were hurled at young Jarvis yesterday by several of the "fans." They seemed to work on the youngster's nerves, and in his anxiety to get away his throws quick he wobbled on several occasions. Toward the end of the second game, however, he braced up like a veteran and took more time in getting away the ball with the proper result.

Mel Sheppard Gets His First Handicap

For the first time in the history of amateur track sport in New England Mel Sheppard has been given a handicap in a quarter mile run. This will happen when Tom Halpin of the B. A. A. will concede an allowance of two yards to the hero of two sets of Olympic games at the Scotch picnic at Caledonian Grove tomorrow afternoon. In this event Halpin will also allow his clubmate, D. B. Young, two yards.

Cobb Sees President; Invites Him to Game

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—"Ty" Cobb was a White House caller yesterday. He came with Representative Tribble of Georgia, and President Wilson greeted him warmly. Cobb invited the President to see the Detroit-Washington game, especially that on Saturday, when a cup will be presented to Walter Johnson. The President said he would try to attend.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 1.—With Tyler, Hess and Dickson to hurl in the remaining two games against the Cardinals the Pilgrims have a good chance of sliding the space between them and the sliding Dodgers.

The Pilgrims, not much on slugging, have won a majority of games with first class pitching. The hurling staff itself isn't a hulky one, but the regulars are getting enough work to keep them in trim.

After the stand the Pilgrims visit Cincinnati and Pittsburgh and then they will return home to entertain the East.

Hank O'Day was in a peevish mood yesterday and took it out on the Pilgrims. In the first inning he sent all the substitutes to the clubhouse for complaining on the call of balls and strikes. It was a funny sight to see the Pilgrims do the army march off the field. The boys took their time about marching and Hank pulled out his watch, threatening to forfeit the game. Captain Sweeney rushed out and had his mates leave immediately. Throughout the game O'Day picked on the Pilgrims, urging them to hustle. He picked on Perdue, but Hub refused to listen to Hank.

Briscoe Lord is regaining his swatting eye and probably has batted his way into a regular job. He poled four hits yesterday and one of them a home run, which was a terrific drive to the scoreboard in deep center. Unfortunately nobody was on at the time.

"Rabbit" Maranville was more lucky as he poled his home run in the second with two on and two out. This produced three runs.

The Cards may be without the services of Manager Huggins for the remainder of the series. He has laid off as the heat is telling on him. Charley O'Leary will operate on second during his absence.

The Pilgrims have another pitcher. That is the report given out by Secretary Herman Nickerson. He arrived at the Nickerson residence Tuesday and is a bouncing nine-pound boy.

"I don't know if he's a right-hander or southpaw," said Herman.

BASEBALL CHATTER

Rube Marquard carries a horseshoe. Knocked out of the box by the Cubs, he still keeps intact his record of nine straight wins because Fromme went in with the score a tie and then was beaten out in the ninth.

* * *

Both the Giants and the Athletics lost some ground yesterday in the pennant race, but leads of eight and one-half and eight games respectively look very good with only two months to play.

* * *

No the Yankees are not claiming any pennants, but two straight victories over the White Sox has inspired Chance's men to try and get out of the rathskeller.

* * *

The Athletics ran bases like a bush league team, while the Browns made six of their eight hits count. The result was that the leaders were trailing at the wind-up.

* * *

Joe Boehling is a broken-hearted youngster today. One thousand came from his home town in Richmond, Va., to watch the star perform. But the Tigers squelched any enthusiasm by beating the Senators.

* * *

Three-Fingered Brown could not stop the heavy hitting Phillies and was driven from the box. Ritter eased up after the Reds were trailing hopelessly behind.

* * *

Ty Cobb put a few over on Shoeless Joe Jackson in the race for the batting honors. The Georgia Peach had a percentage of .500, while the Cleveland star went to bat six times and got nary a hit.

* * *

Miller's drive for three bases with two men on, turned the tide in favor of the Pirates in the game with the Dodgers. The Dodgers still could do nothing with Robinson, who has beaten them for two years.

* * *

"Chink" Yingling is not with the Dodgers. The pitcher is suffering from poisoned ivy, with which he came in contact when he visited his home in Lebanon while the team was playing the Reds.

Whitney and Inman in Pier Final Today

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 1.—F. C. Inman of New York and E. H. Whitney of Boston will meet today in the finals in the men's lawn tennis singles for the Point Judith Country Club cup. Inman, who has two legs of the cup contest, needs only one more win to secure permanent possession of the trophy which has been in competition for six years.

Inman's victory over W. M. Washburn of Hartford, Ct., the Harvard University expert, was a surprise. Pitting his net game with Washburn's back court game, Inman won after four sets, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.

Whitney, the young Harvard player, also had to go four sets to win over H. C. Johnson of Boston.

Boston Woman Loses Bar Harbor Trophy

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 1.—The silver cup offered by the Swimming Club to the winner of the women's tennis singles was won by Mrs. Harold Sands of Rosemont, Pa., who defeated Miss Edith Weld of Boston, 6—2, 6—1.

Local Man Equals Mark.

FAYBAN, N. H., Aug. 1.—W. E. Dodge of Boston equaled the course record made several years ago by L. V. Lewis, the former professional of the course, getting thirty-five. His card was 4, 4, 5, 3, 4, 4, 4, 3, 4—35.

Ankle Deep Wins Opening Cup Race

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—With its giant motors not missing an explosion the Ankle Deep, owned by Count Casimir S. Mankowski, won the opening race for the gold challenge cup of the American Power Boat Association. It was the entry of the Lake George Yacht Racing Association.

The P. D. Q. III., owned by A. Graham Miles of the Chippewa Y. C., was second and the cup defender, The Miss III., owned by J. Harold Hayden, was third.

The Ankle Deep showed that in speed at least it outclassed all the other entries. It covered the 50-mile course in 45 minutes and 55 seconds.

BIG ENTRY FOR OPEN WOODLAND CLUB TOURNEY

One of the big open tournaments of the season will be held at the Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale, Saturday afternoon. Woodland is one of the clubs near Boston that always draws a large crowd of Massachusetts players to its tournaments, and from present indications, it looks as if the largest entry in the club's history would be recorded.

Open tourneys have been very scarce this season; there having been but two in the last month, one at Wollaston and the other at the Hatherly Golf Club. The popularity of the latter was evinced in the entry of 116 players. Woodland is expecting to entertain at least as many and has obtained the most attractive prizes for the competition.

There will be a trophy for the best gross, and the first and second net scores. Competing for these will be one of the classiest fields of the year. Already the amateur champion, Francis Ouimet, has entered, and, as he holds the amateur record for the course (66), he will be a strong bidder for final honors. Sam K. Sterne of Tatnuck, P. W. Whittemore of the Country Club, R. R. Gorton of Brae-Burn, N. W. Dyar of Oakley and many other prominent golfers have already been booked.

Post entries will be allowed next Saturday and it is probable that, with good weather, and the course in the shape as it is today, Woodland will score a great success both in the quality of play and size of the competing field.

German Sonders Are on Way Here

HAMBURG, Ger., Aug. 1.—The three German sonder class yachts which are to take part in the challenge races against the American boats at the regatta off Marblehead, Mass., in September, left here July 29 on board the Cincinnati.

They are the Angela, belonging to the Crown Prince; the Berum, owned by Waldemar Pietgens of Hamburg, and the Wiltebisch, owned by Christof Alt of Berlin. The Angela and the Berum have been equipped with new sets of sails in the hope of improving their form.

Schmidt Will Be Home August 18

Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, who has made a big impression in European golfing circles, will sail for this country from Glasgow, Scotland, August 8, according to information received by his relatives here. He writes that he expects to land in Boston on or about August 18.

He is scheduled to defend his title as amateur champion of New Hampshire in the White Mountain tournament, which is to be held the last part of next month. He will later take part in the national golf tournament in Garden City, N. Y.

FINE CARD OF RACES OFFERED BY FELLSWAYS

For next Saturday's card of the Fellsway Driving Club at Combination Park four mile races and five half-mile chases have been arranged, which should prove the best program thus far this season. The mile races will witness some real racing as the horses are very closely matched. Several new starters have been added. Among them is Argot Lad with a record of 2:17. Lady Belle will keep him busy to win. Some of the horses will start in mile heats for the first time and it will be interesting to see how they act.

Secretary Twombly's roster has always been record half miles and this will be his first start over the full distance. The entries follow:

Class A, Pacing, mile heats--Lady Belle, b. m., O. E. Doherty; Argot Lad, b. g., Geo. Davis.
Class B, Pacing, mile heats--Fisher Boy, b. g., Geo. Law; Henrietta, br. m., Wm. Armstrong.
Class C, Trot, mile heats--J. C. L., ch. g., H. J. Pearson, Jr.; Dr. Jones, b. g., H. S. Campbell; Ayscothy, ch. h., R. McDuffie.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. G. MITCHELL

THESE Clevelands seem to be pretty hard nuts to crack. They appear to be sailing along with considerable luck, but as they are on their toes all the time they take advantage of the slightest opening offered by the opposing team. Add to this a good staff of pitchers and a couple of fine hitters and you have a good combination. The Detroit Tigers won several championships with good pitching, two swell hitters in Cobb and Crawford plus the ginger that Jennings was able to make them show. When the Detroit players outlived their usefulness and the club was not able to find men to take their place the club dropped down the ladder. Take Cleveland's good pitchers away from the club and it, too, would drop.

HUGH BEDIENT pitched six innings of as fine an article of ball as anyone could wish to see in the first game of the double-header. In those six innings only one man reached first base and he was caught napping off the bag. The trouble started after two men had been retired in the seventh. Then Olson doubled to right-center. Jackson was purposely passed; at least it looked that way, as Bedient wouldn't give him a good ball to hit, although he did not pitch out on any of the four balls sent up to the heavy-hitting Cleveland man. With two on, the old reliable Lajoie pasted a single to left, scoring a run, but Jackson was out at third trying to make that box. It looked as though Jackson's death occurred before Olson crossed the plate, but Silk O'Loughlin didn't see it that way.

IN the eighth Bedient went to the bad. He started by passing "Cotsatop" Turner, Graney batted and Gardner's throw was a trifle wild. Engle got the ball, but his toss puffed off the plate. Carisch laid down a sacrifice and Lelivelt went up to bat for Fullenberg. He made the luckiest kind of a Texas League double, the ball landing fair by one inch, close to the left field foul line. This hit scored two runs and was enough to win the game. Lisbold, however, beat a bunt, and with Lelivelt on third the pair worked a double steal. Umpire Sifferlian was in the way of the throw going and coming or Lelivelt would doubtless have been out at the plate. As it was, Janvrin had to throw over Sheridan and the ball came too high to the plate. Soon after Olson came along with a high bounder over Wagner's head, which scored the fourth run of the round. Bedient then retired in favor of Hall. The game was on ice, for although Gregg hit Wagner and passed Yerkes, who batted for Thomas in the ninth, the next three batters could do nothing with the Southpaw.

FRED FALKENBERG doesn't seem to have taken on my flesh since he last visited these shores. He still looks like a pale ghost to me, but he still knows how to pitch ball. The Red Sox only got four hits off him in the seven innings he worked. His batting average remains about the same--something like .004. He fanned twice and doubtless the Red Sox would have won the first game if he had been allowed to bat. But Manager Birmingham slipped in Lelivelt as a pinch hitter on us and the deed was done.

HARRY HOOPER made another one of those one-handed catches close to the fence while on the dead run.

JOE JACKSON did not fatten his average very much in the double-header. He was up eight times and drew two passes, but didn't get a hit. Bedient struck him out twice. Joe has never shown much fence-busting in Boston.

NO game would be complete without Chapman being caught napping off first. He was a victim, as usual, in the opening game. He made the first single off Bedient, but was caught flat-footed before he found out what first base looked like.

LARRY GARDNER made three singles in the first game and two in the second. In eleven straight times at bat (not including two bases on balls) he hit safely ten times.

THE fat boy mascot finally got busy (though he refused to work in the first game. In the second picture, however, he took care of the balls for his side. The crowd gave him a cheer when he made his appearance.

Murphy Refuses to Battle with Eagan

Mack Claims Eddie Is Dodging Bout with South Boston Rival

By JACK CONWAY.

EDDIE MURPHY has not covered the $200 forfeit which Eddie Mack, manager of Joe Eagan, posted with the writer to bind a match with the winner of the Murphy-Gallant bout. Murphy easily defeated Gallant, but he does not seem anxious to clash with Eagan.

Mack believes that Murphy is afraid to battle Eagan. In discussing the matter today he said:

"I saw Murphy after his victory over Gallant at the Athletic Club. I asked him if he would not box Eagan, as I consider Joe one of the leading contenders for the lightweight championship of New England. He recently fought thirty-two bouts in nine weeks and was not defeated once. Therefore I believe that he is entitled to a go with Murphy.

"Eddie was offered a chance to battle Eagan at the Athletic Club by Johnny McGann after Eddie came home from the West. Murphy turned down the offer, declaring that he intended to rest during the Summer. A few days later he changed his tactics and asserted that he was willing to wager $500 that he could defeat either Gallant or Eagan.

"Johnny McGann, Alex McLean, Murphy and myself then arranged a meeting. Murphy at first refused to talk to me, as he said that the only man he wanted to box was Gallant.

"WILL NOT BOX EAGAN."

"I TOLD Eddie that I had $500 which I was willing to wager that Eagan could defeat him. The South Boston boxer thought that I was trying to bluff him, but when I showed my money he turned white and informed me that he would not box Eagan, as the latter was a South Boston boy. Murphy was as happy as a schoolboy just starting on a vacation when he was matched with Gallant instead of Eagan.

"Eagan wants to clash with Murphy because he is confident that he can vanquish him. He has told me to get him a bout with Murphy even if I have to drag Eddie into a ring with a derrick. Joe saw the Gallant-Murphy fight and stated after the 'go' that he was sure that he would have won if he were in Gallant's place.

"Murphy need not worry about becoming unpopular in South Boston by outpointing Eagan, for the very good reason that he is not able to do it. Joe believes that he has Eddie's number and is not afraid that he will lose any friends in the Peninsular district if he beats Murphy. We will permit Murphy to name the terms for the bout. He must now either sign for a bout with Joe or admit he is afraid to box him."

MEETS REGULAR DAY MORGAN.

AFTER Mack made this lengthy statement, he wiped the perspiration off his forehead, arranged his hair, put on his "gobat" cap, bid me adieu and then went forth in search of some more ammunition. And then they say that there are not any Danny Morgans among the local fight managers. 'Tis a cruel falsehood.

LANGFORD-JEANETTE "60" UNLIKELY.

SAM LANGFORD will probably not meet Joe Jeanette in this city until January or February of next year, as he has been offered good inducements for bouts with the Helena heavyweight in New York and California. Joe Woodman, Langford's manager, is naturally anxious to do as well as possible with Sam in the matter of dates. He figures that if Langford and Jeanette fight in New York or on the Coast, that they can meet again in this city, provided that the first contest is fairly even. But if Sam and Joe should first clash in Boston they could not very well perform a few months later in Gotham or California.

SAM IS AFTER "PORKY."

LANGFORD wants to show his skill in Boston and would like to get a bout with "Porky" Flynn. Langford and Flynn were formerly under the management of Joe Woodman, but the two fighters had a personal dispute when in Australia and there was a "break." They met in a bout in the land of the Southern cross and the contest was stopped in the fourteenth round by the police. Langford claims that the police interfered in order to save Flynn from a knockout, while "Porky" asserts that he was in good shape when the contest was halted and that he was outpointing Langford. Boston fans believe Langford's story is nearer the truth than Flynn's.

Crack Swimmers Clash at Winthrop

Much interest in being taken in the swimming races to be held by the Cottage Park Hotel of Winthrop in their swimming pool tomorrow afternoon. Many fast swimmers have entered, including Miss Alice Eldridge who has won many prizes in the few years she has been in competition. Miss Eldridge has competed in every event around the North Shore this year and has never been beaten.

Report Johnson and Langford Matched

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.--It is now settled that Jack Johnson will battle twenty rounds with Sam Langford in London early in October next. One of the sporting journals from Paris at hand makes this startling announcement: "Jack Johnson is to meet Sam Langford for the championship of the world. Both men are in fine shape for the fight. It will take place in October in London, England."

Jackies' Ball Game Tewksbury Feature

A baseball game between the U. S. S. Nebraska and the U. S. S. Virginia will be one of the features of the annual field day of the Oblate Fathers at the Novitiate grounds, Tewksbury, tomorrow afternoon. Residents of Greater Boston will attend in large numbers as the Summer residents of Tewksbury and of Silver Lake, Wilmington, are all from around the Hub.

Other events of the program, which starts at 10 a. m., are: 100-yard dash, three-legged race, potato race, sack race, greased pig race, fat man's race, 50-yard backward race, tug-of-war and 220-yard run. A baseball game between the Tewksbury and Silver Lake campers will be played.

Beauty

"My ideal of beauty is health," says Blanche Ring; and other valuable hints.

Miss Blanche Ring

Beauty is health. Health does not exist in the haggard, leathery-skinned woman Fat is not pretty. Those who find it threatening them should avoid potatoes, food prepared in oils and sugar products. Magnetism, sweetness of disposition and willingness to work are all aids to beauty.

Think less about what you have a right to expect from life, and make sure you are giving life all that it has a right to expect from you. Try to make others happy. That gives you a proper setting to your beauty.

"YOU would never dream of setting a diamond in paste," quoted to the author of the remark. "Now, Miss Ring, exactly what is your ideal of beauty and your idea of the setting therefor?"

"My idea of beauty is health," answered Miss Ring with prompt certainty. "And health does not exist in the haggard, leathery-skinned woman who has dieted herself into a state of near-decline. The healthy woman is at her normal weight, whether that be pleasing plumpness or sylph-like slimness—and she has not the nervous, heavy-eyed look of the woman who lives on a cracker and an apple diet a day so she can persuade a figure that might be a healthy-looking thirty-eight to be a shadowy pointer that measures about thirty inches about its girth.

"Of course, fat is not pretty—and if a woman finds it threatening her she would do well to avoid potatoes, bread, rich gravies and foods prepared in oils and sugar products. But after a woman reaches thirty the red blood corpuscles go on a long holiday and she had better not hasten their demise by furiously taunting herself to a cosmopolite shadow —or any strain through over-exercise. No, let her live out of doors all she can —swimming, tennis and gardening are the most delightful Summer exercises, and a simple, sane diet with this little secret to help it along will do wonders to bring on attractive slenderness without painful self-starvation.

"Here is the secret: One day of every week live on this menu for each of the three meals. For breakfast, for luncheon and for dinner eat a baked potato seasoned with a bit of butter, some skimmed milk and pepper and salt to taste.' Then you will have the proper compound of substance and shadow!"

"And now for the setting of this properly slender figure," I queried.

"Well," said the beautiful friend of every one who has ever seen her, "the world does not owe me a living, but I owe the world a great deal in return for all it has done for me. So I try to give all I can in affection, in interest and in earnest effort to the world. I think it would be a good plan for girls to think less about what they have a right to expect from life, and to make sure that they are giving life all it has a right to expect from them: a happy, ambitious expression and a sunshiny nature to account for it are bound to result from that attitude.

"But I started to tell you what I think forms the most beautiful setting for beauty—which is health. Magnetism, sweetness of disposition and a joyous willingness to work. The last two one can cultivate, but magnetism, charm, the power that breaks down walls of indifference and of possible misunderstanding, between human and human—that is the gift women long most to possess—and it is the hardest thing in all the world to analyze.

"The nearest I can come to explaining my idea of magnetism is to suggest that women give all they can to life in love, in effort and in the desire to make others happy. Perhaps in this way they can add the final jewel—at least, so it seems to me.

THE mother, understanding him better than he thought, perhaps, only smiled, and patting to his black necktie, asked if he had a white one in his pocket.

CHANGED TO JOY

His face grew suddenly long and he flushed with intense mortification.

"I have not come quite prepared for so grand a ceremony," he stammered. "If the guests will wait a little longer while I send for my coat and tie"—

"They must," declared Mrs. Gretorex, calling a servant at once and giving him one or two orders. "It will not take more than another half hour, and the band can keep them patient till then."

"Tell them I was detained by an accident on the elevated road. As I was," he merrily added. "Keep them in good nature and give me a glimpse of my bride."

"You impatient lover!" was all the relieved mother could say; but her look was a promise, and in a few minutes a trim and quiet girl came tripping to the door, and smiling coquettishly, showed him a room at the other end of the hall, saying:

"Miss Gretorex is all dressed, sir, and will speak to you for a minute if you desire it."

He did not linger an instant. Something—was it love, or only that old pride of his restored to its full life, burned in his breast, and made his short walk down the hall a remembrance of delight to him? Her door, just ajar, was like a beacon of hope, and when he saw it open wider and caught the one short glimpse she allowed him of her tall and elegant figure in its shimmering robes and misty veil he felt his pulse beat as never before, and scarcely needed the charming smile she gave him to complete a happiness, which at that moment was supreme.

"I have kept you waiting," she murmured; and he found no answer for looking at her eyes, that, seen thus through her veil, possessed a beauty and a glow which made her absolutely beautiful. "I am all ready now," she cried, "but mamma says that you are not naughty man, to go careering downtown to look after some patient or other when you should have been thinking only of me."

He laughed, feeling himself to be another being, and she another being from the man and woman of a week ago. Then he looked at her again, and uttered some tender compliment which made her blush deliciously, and then in answer to a wave of her hand, that seemed to say: "Enough!" was about to withdraw, when he saw her eyes suddenly dilate and a look of such shock and fear cross her face that he involuntarily turned and glanced down the hall behind him for its cause. There was nothing there, absolutely nothing; only the figure of a hairdresser or some such woman who, in cloak and veil, stood with her little bag on her arm waiting to enter, and, astonished at the ease with which his mind lent itself to the most startling conjectures, he turned back to reassure himself by another look at his bride, when the door which had been swung open between them softly closed and he found himself shut out from her presence with a new memory and a new fear to make discord of the notes of the wedding march he was soon to hear.

A Startling Interruption

THE Gretorex mansion was eminently adapted for a large gathering. Recent since the introduction of the modern styles, it had intricacies and surprises innumerable, but it had also many and various rooms of spacious proportions opening into hallways so wide and stout staircases so ample that had the number of guests reached the full thousand that had been invited there would have been sufficient accommodation for all. So numerous indeed were the rooms on the first floor and so admirably were they disposed, it had not been found necessary to ask the guests to ascend the stairs at all. Thus it was that Dr. Cameron had met friends on the landings, but none on the floor above, and thus it was that upon his return to the room which had been allotted to him he could pace its length for twenty minutes without an interruption. And a friend's face, a friendly word would have been so welcome! For he did not want to think and was impatient at the solitude which forced him to do so.

When the die has been cast, when our future is decided upon, we wish to reach the culmination without delay, and Dr. Cameron, weary with many and varied emotions, only longed for the moment when amid music and bustle, the flash of lights and the murmur of voices, he should lead his young bride into the presence that would irrevocably seal their fate. For in those long and heavy minutes of waiting he had something besides his thoughts to contend with, he had anxiety, a consciousness almost amounting to an intuition, that something strange, something dark, something entirely out of harmony with this scene of light and joy was taking place near him—in his sight if he could but hear! at all events near him, awesomely near, as near as that closed door toward which he cast hurried and shrinking glances every time it turn in his walk brought him within view of it.

That he had no reason, or at the most but the slightest reason, for this sensation did no make it any less vivid or powerful. Right or wrong, it had got a strong hold upon him and swayed him so completely that if the door I have spoken of had opened in one of the moments his eye was upon it and revealed a grisly skeleton rushing on his threshold he would not have felt the shock as much as he did the ringing burst of melody that now and then soared up from the violins below. Yet in his heart he knew that he was but the fool of his imagination and that nothing more serious than the rearranging of a lock of hair of the buttoning on of a refractory pair of gloves by the commonplace hand of the woman he had seen enter there could be going on in this room his fancy peopled with shapes of fear and despair.

For he was a man of common-sense and knew the fashionable world well and was moreover quite aware as a physician how far, a man's imagination can carry him when his nerves have been unstrung by a series of such potent sensations as had visited him in the last four hours. Let that door once open and the bride step forth and all would be hope and cheer again. He knew it even while he was shuddering over the conviction that it had opened, and that a face had been thrust out in a gesture of silent appeal and as quickly again withdrawn.

The coming of the servant with the articles necessary to complete his toilet was like cold water dashed upon a man heated with fever. It righted him immediately. As he tied his necktie and fastened his gloves he felt himself to be no more a dreamer of nightmares, but Dr. Cameron, known throughout all the city for his practical common-sense and sound judgement. He even laughed in his old, easy fashion as he peered down the hall and saw the servant who had waited upon him walk up and knock with the utmost assurance on the door he had been so long and fearfully watching. Nor did he feel himself to have been any the less a fool when in a moment later he beheld it open and caught a glimpse of his bride's white veil and sweeping train as she gave her answer to the man and then waited with the door half shut for the summons to descend. As he had promised himself it would be, all was cheer and hope again; nor in the bustle of preparation that presently followed did he become conscious of a thought out of harmony with the scene till, suddenly, as he was half way down the stairs, he felt his bride lean a little heavily on his arm and, turning to look at her, perceived not a woman, not an automaton even, but a spectre, whose glassy eyes, fixed upon vacancy, froze the blood in his veins.

What did it mean? Was she mad or was she— He did not stop to finish his thought; he clutched her by the arm and gently but firmly spoke her name. A shiver seemed to go through her, then she turned her head and slowly, painfully, under his gaze her lips took on the semblance of a smile so forced, so meaningless, that he stopped her where she was, and, pointing to the surging sea of faces below, exclaimed:

"They are waiting for us; the minister has his book open, and your parents are already standing on each side of him, but if you do not wish to marry me, if there is any impediment in the way, or if you feel I cannot be to you the husband you desire, say so, and we will turn back. No moment is too late before the minister has uttered the final words."

But her eyes, which had opened fearfully as he began to speak, closed softly as he finished, and murmuring coldly, "Let us proceed," she stepped down another stair.

He followed her and spoke again. "I cannot go on, Genevieve," he persisted, "till you assure me of something. Is your heart mine? Stands there any barrier between you whose memory makes this moment frightful to you? If there is"—

"There is not," came from her lips, now showing less pallid under this questioning. "I am ill, fearfully ill; that is all."

He looked at her. He had known extreme which had changed a person's whole aspect in less time than had passed since he saw her blooming and radiant in her bridal dress. And such might have attacked her, he could not tell.

"Are you too ill to go on?" he asked.

"No."

"You can bear the effort and excitement?"

"I can bear anything."

His foot moved toward the edge of the step on which he stood.

"Genevieve?"

He had stopped again.

"Yes," she murmured wearily.

"Do you love me?"

Her form, which up to that moment had held itself erect by the mere force of a will exerted to the utmost, suddenly yielded and expressed in every curve, a feminine softness.

"With all my heart," she murmured.

"Then," said he "I am content." And his foot passed over the edge of the step.

There was no further delay. In a moment more the last four of the stairs, and in another had entered the parlor under the gaze of five hundred eyes, or so. As they did so a murmur expressive of something more than admiration arose behind them, and Dr. Cameron, tortured by anxiety, cast another look at his bride. She was pale and her eyes were surrounded by great circles, but it was a woman who moved beside him and a determined woman, too, and the chance brought comfort to his heart and made the rest of his walk down the room less of an ordeal than their entrance had been.

Boston Women Who Have Made Good

NO. 10.—MRS. N. H. MORAN

Mrs. N. H. Moran, president of the Business Women's Club and proprietor of one of the largest catering concerns in the city, began her successful career seven years ago.

Mrs. Moran has a grocery and meat bill of $60,000 yearly and she furnishes 7000 school children with daily lunches besides providing meals for eight hundred regular restaurant customers.

One hundred employes, such as cooks, bakers, waitresses, janitors, boys of all work and clerks, make up her economic family.

It is right here among these helpers of hers that Mrs. Moran believes her secret of success lies. She holds strong opinions and is perfectly frank in declaring her belief. She said:

"Success today depends more upon the human element than upon any other factor. Loyalty, enthusiasm, love of work among one's helpers are far greater factors in my success than any number of improved breadmixers or potato-peelers.

"Efficiency is the word with which to conjure with today, and no one knows it better than the restaurant proprietor.

"Efficiency to me means, in the first place, harmony and esprit-de-corps among my employes. It means that they who are responsible for fresh, light bread, palatable soups, tender meats and the best of service are working with me and for me as I am working for them. They give me the best that is in them and in return I supply in every practicable way possible first-rate working conditions, such as an eight-hour day, light, well ventilated kitchens, vacations with pay, rest rooms, an insurance system to cover sickness, just wages, and rest rooms open all hours of the day.

"Then, too, I have a different smile angle for each one; and by that I mean I try to treat each one of my 100 helpers as an individual, different from all the rest and calling for a particular kind of attention. I know them all by name and we all work together much as one large family.

"I was compelled to continually make good, and therefore when I grew up making good had become a habit with me, and then how could I fail?

I seemed to be a natural born leader and have always allied myself with that half of society that does things and not with the mere analyzer and philosopher.

In doing things, however, fortune has really favored me and I have found myself in positions where I was given great freedom to carry out my progressive schemes and policies. Before I took up the restaurant work, I was engaged in the employment bureau of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union.

"While I have no exact specific for success, it is my firm opinion that true ability and desire to win in the battle of life will not go long without opportunity for expression.

Japanese Labor Cheap, but Not Good

Selected by EDWIN MARKHAM

I NEVER glance into Clarence Poe's book, "Where Half the World Is Waking Up," without finding some interesting view of the human problem. This vista of Japanese labor is timely:

"In the very outset, the assumed parallel between Japan's rise as a military power and her predicted rise as an industrial power should be branded as the groundless non sequitur that it is. 'All our present has its roots in the past,' as my first Japanese acquaintance said to me; and we ignore fundamental facts when we forget that, for centuries unnumbered, Japan existed for the soldier, as the sembud for the blossom. The man of martial courage was the goal of all her striving, the end of all her travail. Society was a military aristocracy, the Samurai the privileged class. And at the same time commerce was despised as dishonorable and industry merely tolerated as a necessary evil.

"In the race she has to run, moreover, the Mikado-land has no such advantages as many of our people have been led to believe. In America it has long been my conviction that cheap labor is never cheap; that so-called 'cheap labor' is a curse to any community—not because it is cheap, but because it is inefficient. The so-called cheap negro labor in the South, for example, I have come to regard as perhaps the dearest on the continent.

"Here in Japan, however, I was quite prepared to find that this theory would not hold good. By reason of conditions in a primitive stage of industrial organization, I thought that I might find cheap labor with all the advantages in so far as there are any, and few of the disadvantages, encountered elsewhere. But it is not so. An American factory owner in Osaka, summing up his Job's trials with raw Japanese labor, most exactly my own phrase in a newspaper article a few days ago. 'Cheap labor is never cheap.' And all my investigations have convinced me that the remark is as applicable in Japan as it is in America or England.

"The per capita wages of Japanese laborers in Japan are, of course, amazingly low. The latest 1910 statistics of Japan, as furnished by their Department of Finance, indicates a daily wage (American money) of 40 cents for carpenters, 31½ cents for blacksmiths, 25½ cents for compositors, 19½ cents for masons, laborers, and 22 cents for male weavers and 12 cents for female. In the cotton factories I visited, those of the better sort, the wages run from 5 cents a day for the youngest children to 25 cents for the good women workers.

"But in spite of the fact that such figures as these are well known to the Japanese host (one of the Emperor's privy councillors, and a man of much travel and culture), he expressed the conclusion that Japanese factory labor when reduced to terms of efficiency is not really cheaper than European, an opinion which has since grown rather trite in view of the number of times that I have heard it."

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

The hooting of a motor-bus was heard as a passenger and railway porter were talking.

"Oh, dear me," said the passenger, "the sound of those motor horns makes me go queer all over."

"Why?" asked the porter.

"Why?" was the reply. "A motor driver ran away with my wife."

"Ah," said the porter, "and it upsets you to think of it?"

"No, it's not that," replied the distressed one. "I am afraid he might be bringing her back."

"I don't know whether to accept this testimonial or not," mused the hair restorer man.

"What's the matter with it?" demanded the advertising manager.

"Well," explained the boss, "the man writes, 'I used to have three bald spots on the top of my head, but since using one bottle of your hair restorer I have only one.'"

To Cure Salt Rheum and Scaly Skin

A Most Effective Treatment, Quick in Results.

Salt rheum, scaly skin and other itchy skin affections may be soothed by frequent applications of witch hazel. But the cure must come from the activity of the fine network of blood vessels that make up the skin formation. You should use S. S. S. for the blood. This splendid remedy is a marvel for salt rheum, eczema, lupus, psoriasis and scrofula. Ask at any drug store for a bottle of S. S. S., and you are then on the road to health. The action of this remarkable remedy is direct, positive, certain in its influence. It is one of those rare medical forces which act in the blood with the same degree of certainty that is found in all natural tendencies. The manner in which it dominates, kills and drives out dangerous transference of the rich, red, pure arterial blood for the impaired blood in many forms.

Out through every skin pore acids, germs and other blood impurities are forced in the form of invisible vapor. The lungs breathe it out, the liver is stimulated to consume a great proportion of impurities, the stomach and intestines cease to convey harmful germ into the blood; the bowels, kidneys, bladder and all emunctories of the body are marshaled into a fighting force to expel every vestige of impurities.

Get a bottle of this famous remedy to-day, and if your case is stubborn or peculiar, write to The Swift Specific Co., 158 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

For Children Only

(I may be asked why I, of all men, should write upon questions affecting marriage and other relations. In reply, I would say that one who has gone through what I have, suffered as much as I have, and seen as much of the world and its hard side, may possibly have something to say that will be of use to others. I hope so, at least.—JERE K. COOKE.)

By JERE K. COOKE

A SAN FRANCISCO doctor remarked the other day—"How many fine hospitals you have in New York for your sick children!" "Yes," replied a friend. "But we have no place to put them when they are well."

A walk through city parks will prove this.

There are as many cemeteries that are as large as these within the city walls and three, too, have their overflow of the living seeking relief and rest. One proof of New York being money mad is that the rich have everything provided for them, and the poor comparatively nothing.

Take a walk through the parks where New York boasts children are free to play. See the signs, "For Equestrians Only"—"Bridle Path"—"For Golfers Only"—"Speedway—Do Not Cross Here." Then look around for a place for your children and you are confronted by the ubiquitous signs, "Keep Off the Grass." I believe that on certain days, "if the flag is up," the children can enjoy the grass.

Poor little waifs of a great city!

Crowding around the ice wagons, even patronizing the little pieces to cool their parching tongues.

I happened to be present at the presenting of the stairway at "Coogan's Bluffs" to the city by the president of the Giants—New York's baseball champions.

It was an occasion worthy of a bigger crowd, for few more than a hundred, not including the small boy, took interest enough to attend. An hour later, across the street, 15,000 people "saw the game."

IMPORTANT WORDS

The Park Commissioner, in a strong, simple, direct and forceful speech, said some important things. One was that the city had not appropriated one dollar to the improvement of the Bluffs, which was one of its parks, other than to run a path through it. He did not say how much money the Speedway, which runs at the foot of it, cost the city.

He also said that he had been the object of public criticism because he had allowed the boys of the city to play ball upon the improved parts of the public parks.

Poor little city children! I saw a train load literally invade and demolish a vast area of plains violets with no other notion than sheer delight to be among the flowers. Little children of the street, you have nowhere to play, as all the improved parks are restricted. The roads are for the automobiles and fine horses, no workingman's horse is allowed. The bridle paths and golf grounds are for the rich. The grass is restricted and there is only left the hard cement walks for the poor. Why not erect signs here "For Poor People Only."

After the ceremonies of the giving of the stairway, a really notably worthy public benefaction, the crowd, who could afford it, adjourned to the Polo Grounds.

At the gate they were met by a woman selling heart-shaped tags for the "Mothers' Day Nursery and Home for Destitute Children." On one side was the picture of an anxious mother in whose arms was a suffering child.

On the tag was printed the touching words that have become a slang expression today, "Have a heart!" I saw very few people have a heart of all that went into the grounds.

WHAT A WOMAN DID

For interest in the children and their work and play, it is the woman rather than the man who has a heart. This was shown not only by the woman selling them and the women in charge of the orphans, but by an incident I saw returning from the game.

As the crowd was passing along a side street several little boys were sitting on a curbstone, which is the small boys' park bench.

One of the urchins looked up and accosted several of the men passing with the query: "Who won the game, mister?" No one of them replied or paid the slightest attention. Finally a woman passed and volunteered one reply. She said sweetly and simply: "Giants!" and the gleeful exclamations were thanks enough for her.

If there is any grass in heaven and it is beautiful and green I hope the good Lord will put up a conspicuous sign:

Confessions of a Medium

A Striking Expose of Fakery in Spiritualism, Clairvoyance, etc.

WITH TURBAN ON MY HEAD AND ORIENTAL COSTUME ABOUT ME, I STEP FROM THE TAXICAB THAT CONVEYED ME AND MARCH INTO THE DIMLY LIGHTED ROOM, ACCOMPANIED BY MY AMERICAN GUIDE. I AM LED TO THE FRONT OF THE APARTMENT AND SEATED ON A HIGH CHAIR. I PLACE MY HANDS TO MY EYES, RUB MY TEMPLES, AND THEN APPEAR TO FALL INTO A TRANCE, BEING BUT BARELY CAUGHT BY MY GUIDE. AND PROPPED UP AGAIN. A MEMBER OF THE AUDIENCE THEN VOLUNTEERS TO BLINDFOLD ME, WHICH IS DONE VERY CAREFULLY, FOR I MUST NOT SEE WITH MY EYES, BUT MERELY WITH MY SUBCONSCIOUS SOUL.

By Chas. D. Isaacson.

Copyright, 1912, by International News Service

YOU have watched the crowds in front of the "fortune tellers' booths. Of course, you have never been one of those who have been "taken in." But you may have watched the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. But would you advise me to do to make them understand?

L. M.

MY dear, if those men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

With turban on my head and Oriental costume about me, I step from the taxicab that conveyed me and march into the dimly lighted room, accompanied by my American guide. I am led to the front of the apartment and seated on a high chair. I place my hands to my eyes, rub my temples, and then appear to fall into a trance, being but barely caught by my guide and propped up again. A member of the audience then volunteers to blindfold me, which is done very carefully, for I must not see with my eyes, but merely with my subconscious soul.

My guide goes to the back of the room and says, "I speak, Ali. Have you your second sight? Please tell me what this is?"

Very quickly I answer, "There appears to be a hat."

"Right. Hear me now. Please watch me carefully. See this? I ask you to describe it."

A WATCH

"You hold in your hand a watch."

"Now what kind? Be quick, please."

"It is of silver."

"What is the number? Look carefully. Are you ready? Tell us then."

"The number is 62,310."

And so on the questions and answers went, and everything correct to the minutest detail. A doctor who was present proclaimed the results marvelous—that Ali Hassan was a unique specimen for scientific research. Several motions made, seconded and carried unanimously, that the results of the experiment be sent to various psychical societies and leaflets printed with a full and detailed description and mailed to leading authorities in this country and abroad.

Really when I doffed my turban and sank down in a good hearty laugh with my "guide" later on, I once again had occasion to laugh at the credulity of my neighbors. The second sight of Ali Ben Hassan consisted of nothing but a good memory on the part of myself, an amateur investigator into the frauds of mystery.

My friend and I had arranged a code, as follows: Our questions would tell the answer to what they were asking, by the manner in which they were worded. The first letter in each sentence spelled out the answer; but if we had gone no further, this might easily have been detected. So we turned the alphabet topsy-turvy and made H stand for A, T stand for B, S stand for C and so on. For instance, look at the first question that was put to me:

THE SOLUTION

"I" being the first word uttered, suggested "H." "Have" in the second sentence, suggested "A." "Please" in the third sentence, suggested "T"—the three together making "hat."

I cannot even begin to show you the further details of the code, which went still deeper, and covered every possible article, description, date, color, metal, etc. We had even gone so far as to vary our code by different signals, and had single words mean fixed things. So that if, perchance, some one began to get the system, we would throw him off the scent. For instance, the second variation made "Say what stone this is" meant diamond. "Please tell me what this stone is" meant emerald, and so on. "May what country is represented here" would indicate America, while "Please tell me what country is represented here" would indicate Spain.

There is no doubt but the memorizing of these codes is remarkable, and on that basis may be paid for. But I cannot understand why thousands will continue to believe that a strange, unseen power is possessed by these so-called clairvoyants who flourish and grow rich on money defrauded from the credulous pleasure-seekers who frequent the resorts.

One more incident on clairvoyancy:

Some time after the Ali Ben Hassan episode, a number of those who had been present were invited to investigate that wonderful gentleman again at a friend's home in Brooklyn. One of the scholars had sufficiently awakened by this time to declare that he thought it was possible the manner in which the questions had been asked suggested their answer. At this most of the others arose in anger and laughed scornfully at the man who who could show himself skeptical in the face of such conclusive evidence. The "guide" was very much aroused and said he feared this statement would cause Ali to refuse to talk again. (This manner of procedure is generally followed when some one gets on the trail). Nevertheless, to prove that the charge was preposterous, Ali would allow any one to ask the questions and he would answer them!

Therefore, to the amazement of all this was done, and the results were more bewildering than before. There was no doubt of it. Ali Ben Hassan was gifted with a remarkable supernatural sight. But the explanation is so simple once then in the first incident. We were prepared for all emergencies. I had previously connected in the folds of my turban the end of a slender speaking tube that came close to my ear and extended from another room and was painted in the color of the wall. Hidden in the next room was another confederate, who looked through an opening in the draperies, held a powerful opera glass to his eyes, and whispered the answers sweetly through the tube in my ear!

The Head Waitress

She Tells the Steady Customer of the New Arrival at the Manager's Home

By HANK

"WHAT'S the manager looking so cheery about, Louise?" asked the Steady Customer of the Head Waitress in the Cafe d'Enfant.

"A little girl stranger slipped into his home yesterday," she replied, "and, believe me, she was some cherub. Nine and a quarter pounds."

"Gee! No wonder Mr. Flakes is all puffed up," said the Steady Customer. "And what are they going to name little Miss Flakes?"

"Miss Snow Flakes would be a bit," said the Head Waitress.

The Steady Customer chuckled.

"My, but you're getting facetious, Louise," he said.

"I'm going to look that word up," she replied, "and if it means what I think it means I'll land you over the head with a plate of creamed hash."

"It's harmless," said the Steady Customer, "but tell me more about the manager's new arrival."

"Well, when he came in this morning," she said, "the telephone started ringing every five minutes with some one of his friends on it, all wanting to congratulate him. Later on he was called down into the basement to inspect the fresh-baked pies and sinkers, and the assistant manager had to answer the phone. Every time he went to it some voice would say, 'Hello, Pop!' while some started to sing, 'Here Comes My Daddy Now,' until the assistant manager got so mad that he nearly bit a piece out of the receiver."

"Some folks can't take a joke," said the Steady Customer.

"No," replied the Head Waitress. "But, all joking aside, I do admire Mr. Flakes. He's a home man. As soon as he's through here he hears it straight to the fireside and don't make any stops on the way, either. That's the kind of a bloke that could cop my young affections any time. But I guess all of them guys is married, because the only legible ones I ever seen either had a permanent distillery breath or chicken fever."

"What does Marie think about it?" asked the Steady Customer.

"She's tickled to death, too," said the Head Waitress. "She thinks Mr. Flakes is great. He's no kind to her. Any time she has a date he always lets her off for an hour so she can doll up and put on her glad rags."

"Well, Marie," said the Steady Customer as he paid his check at the cashier's desk, "I hear Dame Fortune has knocked on the manager's door."

"Yes," said Marie, "it's great, but I'll bet he's glad she didn't knock more than once at a time."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THERE never was a man who did not think he could throw eloquence into his voice as readily as a woman throws salt into a stew. This is such a pronounced weakness that to the two rules for catching a husband, "Feed the Brute" and "Laugh at His Jokes," there should be this addition, "Ask Him to Read Out Loud."

The sound of his voice is music in his ears when employed in ordinary conversation, and infinitely more like unto a grand, sweet song when engaged in reading the heroic sentiments of others.

Daysey Mayme Appleton had tucked eleven soft cushions back of her caller, every cushion being an additional proof of his eligibility. She had fed him, she had laughed at his jokes. Getting a book from the table she attacked his third vulnerable spot.

It was titled, "The Hunger of Her Soul," and Daysey Mayme had bought it that day.

He had never heard a heavenly harp, but that made no difference. No man ever inspects the compliments paid him. This man didn't, and opening the book at random he began:

"The silence so often intense it fairly pulsated, was broken by a sigh. Then his lips met hers. Warm, soft, and fragrant as the dew, his lips lingered and lingered till their two souls were as one."

The young man blushed. He felt as if he were approaching nearer and nearer a consuming fire.

"Read on," murmured Daysey Mayme. "He gathered her closer to him; his nostrils were filled with the cloying sweetness of her hair; he——"

The young man reached for a fan. "Read on," murmured Daysey Mayme, threw open a window. Then he began again.

"He felt her warm breath on his neck. He could resist, he would resist, no longer——"

The young man took a piece of ice out of a lemonade glass and pressed it to his brow.

"He——"

The young man looked doubtfully at Daysey Mayme. He was country bred and had been brought up by a mother who wouldn't wear anything peek-a-boo, not even a curtain plaster.

"Read on," murmured Daysey Mayme. "He lifted——"

There was a sudden flash of flame, an odor of burning flesh and bones and wonies, and Daysey Mayme was alone!

The country-bred young man's blushes had consumed him.

All in the Point of View.

Shopkeeper—Ah! You are the man nobody likes to see.

Tax Collector—Now, that's strange. I am generally asked to call again.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WAIT A WHILE YEARS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of twenty-seven and am in love with a young lady of seventeen, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? F. R.

SHE is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

NOT IF IT IS WORTH WHILE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and deeply in love with a man eleven years my senior. He often asked me to go to a show, but I refused. Do you think I will lose his affection by not accepting his invitation?

N. Y. Z.

IF he cares for you in the right way, his love is not so easily lost. You do not say why you are refusing his attentions.

DON'T TRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of nineteen, and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theatre. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. But would you advise me to do to make them understand?

Are you dated up for Sunday?
Cancel it.

Whirl! You guess you won't smash your date with Johnny and maybe smoother girl will get him and——?

There, there! Just worry like a prisoner and take arrest. (Joke—take a rest.)

The idea is this: If you wish both pleasure and profit, be sure to be at Paragon Park next Sunday when the "Tunneling" is good.

Yes, "Tunnels" are ripe, both in finance and literature. The AMERICAN is to finance some tunnels and to print another tunnel.

This is the "idee":

The Herr Professor Kollerman has written a wonderful story called "The Tunnel." It deals with the gigantic task of linking Europe and America underground by tunnel. It is more fascinating, even, than Jules Verne's tales, which thrilled you through and through.

The AMERICAN will print "The Tunnel" serially, beginning next Monday. It will soon be recognized by readers as the wonder story of 1913.

Well, what's that to do with Paragon Park? Just this. The fact of this story starting Monday suggested to the AMERICAN the idea of some other tunnels for Sunday, as follows:

THE AMERICAN WILL DISTRIBUTE ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-NINE CARDBOARD TUNNELS AT PARAGON PARK NEXT SUNDAY BETWEEN 10 A. M. AND 6 P. M.

Each one of these tunnels will contain a cash order for a sum of money, ranging from 50c down to 5c. The entire cash value of the total orders will be $500.

More details of this interesting and profitable tunnel idea will be printed in tomorrow's AMERICAN, and still more in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Remember this—Paragon Park—10 a. m. to 6 p. m.—tunnels—be there—$500.

Sure there's money in tunnels if you know how to get it.

Talk Peace Plans to Calumet Miners

Manager McNaughton Negotiating with Strikers.

CALUMET, Mich., Aug. 1.—The Calumet & Hecla Mining Company's manager, James McNaughton, today entered into negotiations with leaders of the striking miners of the company's plant.

The United States government could hire a President and half a dozen Senators for what McNaughton costs the Calumet Company. His salary is $120,000 a year—$2,375 a week.

The strike at the mines has taken such a turn that troops have been called in and the National Guard is encamped about the properties.

No Labor Needed At Panama Canal

Official Announces Work Drawing to a Close.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The chief quartermaster of the Panama Canal Zone has advised the authorities in the various West Indian Islands, whence the principal supply of labor was drawn for the construction of the Canal, that the work is drawing to a close and that at present there is no market for labor on the Isthmus.

Three "Big Four" Pullmans Derailed

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 1.—Three Pullman coaches left the "Big Four" tracks near the Buck Creek Bridge, five miles west of here, early today. Scores of passengers had narrow escapes from injury. Railroad officials declared none of the passengers was hurt. The train was bound for New York to St. Louis and was travelling rapidly when the cars jumped from the rails.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were inclined to be sluggish today and in early trading there were more or less price irregularity. But the tone was far from being weak. Trading was not active and traders were disposed to await some event which would have a positive influence upon values.

At the end of the first hour here New Haven had advanced a trifle, while United Fruit was also higher. Mines were mixed. Amalgamated, Ray Consolidated and Butte & Superior showed small gains, North Butte shaded, while Calumet & Hecla was off 4.

Towards the close of the first hour in New York a number of leaders rallied a little. The price range continued narrow, however. The Harrimans, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Steel, Can common and Erie had advanced fractionally, while Chesapeake & Ohio and Illinois Central were lower.

Stocks Irregular in New York.

The news that the government is going to supply crop moving funds did not promote speculation in New York to any extent. At the opening gains ranging from ¼ to ¾ were made in a variety of unimportant issues, but part of these advances were lost later on moderate selling. Canadian Pacific was exceptionally weak. It declined a point.

With the exception of Southern Pacific, which was unsettled, American railways ruled firm on the London market.

The curb market was steady.

London Copper Quotations.

Spot and futures opened and closed unchanged in the London copper warrants market at £67 7s. 0d. each and the market closed until Tuesday next. Sales were 1,000 tons of futures and none of spot. Tomorrow a bank holiday will begin.

It is reported that there were sales yesterday at 13¼ cents per pound, and that the latter price was firmly held for the present. American consumers are short of immediate supplies. They let foreigners take about all the metal recently available at a much cheaper price than they prevail. Now users of coppers in this country appear to have decided that the world's supply of metal has decreased to an exceedingly low point.

The July output of the Butte camp is given at 22,317,500 pounds, which compared with 22,485,070 in June last and 27,191,180 in July, 1912. There was slight curtailment of ore production at some properties last month, while it increased in others. Davis-Daly and Butte-Alice Scott are among the properties which increased their tonnage and, it is said, both have maintained a high average value and are in a position to greatly increase their output.

For the quarter ending with June last the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company's earnings decreased $522,071 and surplus $504,876.

McAdoo to Name Bank "Plotters"?

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo will be expected to name the New York bankers whom he has charged with conspiring to balk currency legislation to depression in the government's bonds, it is the administration theory that certain bankers were in a plot to put down the price of 2s, in order to create more wide alarm in the minds of holders of United States securities. The bankers want important representation on the Reserve Board, which is proposed. Radical Democrats want to keep them off the board altogether.

Representative Neeley of Kansas proposes to have the House pass a resolution calling the secretary before a committee at once to give the information upon which he based his accusation. He will be asked if the resolution is adopted to name the bankers. If he does, the bankers will be summoned. Quick action is intended. Democrats in the House want to curtail the currency bill on August 11, and those who have the measure in charge are of the opinion that any delay will add to the effect that bankers have tried to undermine public confidence in government bonds as security. any opposition to the measure. A great deal of opposition exists in party ranks. While immortal interests regard it as too radical, a number of Democrats in Congress do not think the bill goes far enough.

Government to Aid Crop Moving.

Secretary McAdoo does not intend to let the people of the country depend much upon Eastern banks for crop moving money. He is going to provide treasury aid, whether it is needed or not. Banking interests say not only are they not guilty of the "plot" charged by Mr. McAdoo and others charge, but that it is the Wilson administration which has changed its attitude to create suspicion. Only, according to this charge, it is the bankers who are being made the "goats."

Secretary McAdoo will deposit from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 in national banks in the South and West to facilitate the handling of harvests. Federal, State and municipal bonds and prime collateral paper will be accepted as security and the Treasury department will charge 2 per cent. interest. This will be the first time in the history of the country that the government has accepted commercial paper as security for deposits. It establishes a precedent which will be of vast importance in the future.

Significant Statement by McAdoo.

Mr. McAdoo made the significant statement," says a Washington dispatch, "that government bonds would be accepted at par as security for deposits and that the additional money would be placed only with banks which have taken out at least 40 per cent. of their authorized circulation. This is expected to help in restoring the price of the depressed 2s (now 95¾) by creating a new market for them."

In regard to commercial paper security, he said: "It could first be passed upon and approved by the clearing house committees of the cities in which the banks offering such paper may be located. All commercial paper and bonds must finally be passed upon and accepted by the secretary."

Approved commercial paper will be accepted as security for deposits at 65 per cent. of its face value, and high-class State, municipal and other bonds, exclusive of government bonds, at 75 per cent. of their market value.

The additional deposits will be placed with the national banks in the principal cities in each of the States where harvesting is now in progress.

The banks will be required to return the money when the crops have been moved. The present proposition is, Mr. McAdoo said, that 15 per cent. be repaid in December; 30 per cent. in January; 50 per cent in February and 25 per cent. in March next.

Tillman Still Has "Pitchfork."

Senator Ben Tillman of South Carolina still has the "pitchfork" he talked about in the days of Cleveland. He voiced last night the feeling of the South towards Wall Street and, explained, perhaps, in an indirect way why the Secretary of the Treasury thinks it necessary to provide Southern and Western banks with crop moving money. He declared the failure of Congress provided relief within sixty days Southern cotton planters would "be robbed of a hundred million dollars or more," on account of the inability of Southern bankers to get money from New York "pirates."

He urged that some kind of resolution be put through immediately to afford temporary relief, and that the House Banking and Currency Committee "stop squabbling" and allow permanent currency legislation to be enacted.

"The New Yorkers have our people by the throat, as they have had them all these years since the war, and only Congress can give relief," he said.

"If something is not done, I see no way of saving the people of the South from great loss, unless the banks take the law into their own hands, as they did in 1907, and form clearing house associations and issue certificates as they had to do then.

"I, for one, am tired of seeing our people held up and robbed by the New York pirates. We appear willing to scuttle the ship rather than lose their grip on the farmers of the country."

Financial News in Brief.

Eighty-six railroads, industrial and public utility enterprises will distribute $24,026,298 in dividends today. Compared with last year these payments show an increase of about three-quarters of a million dollars. The distribution is part of a total of about $110,000,000 that will be paid out by corporations this month in interest and dividends.

James J. Hill says there will be good average crops in the Northwest. "The banking situation," he said, "is fairly comfortable, but money rates are high there as everywhere."

Although the steel trade is dull there is little talk of price cutting. Better September business than usual is expected.

Want Heir to Unite Szechenyi Family

Hope Said to Have Reconciled Count and Gladys Vanderbilt.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The report from Paris that Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, who was Gladys Vanderbilt, seeks a divorce or separation from her husband is positively denied by those very near to them on both sides of the Atlantic.

So far from the Szechenyis being unhappy, their friends said by cable, and in interviews here, that the countess and her husband await longingly the coming of a child, whom they hope will be an heir to perpetuate the family name.

Married at the Cornelius Vanderbilt house No. 1 West Fifty-seventh street, in January, 1908, two daughters have already blessed the union.

Shower Baths at Girls' Latin School

The Park and Recreation Department has arranged for the use of the shower baths in the Girls' Public Latin School in the Fens. The shower baths will be open daily from 2 p. m. until 10 p. m., except Sunday, when the baths will be operated from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. Tuesday and Friday have been reserved for women and girls, other days for men and boys.

APPRECIATE DEBS IN TIME, WRITER SAYS

In response to the AMERICAN'S editorial on "The Woman Dobs Took Into His House," Morris Jolles, attorney at No. 34 School street, writes that in time Mr. Debs' act will be fully appreciated.

Mr. Debs opened his home to a young woman of Terre Haute, Indiana, who had been jailed on a charge of immorality. This caused wide-spread comment, and the AMERICAN editorially invited readers to express opinion. Mr. Jolles writes:

To the Editor Boston AMERICAN:

As one of the readers of your paper I accept your kind invitation in yesterday's editorial to express my opinion on the Socialist leader, Debs' action, giving a home in his house to an outcast girl, and making her feel like one of his own family.

The question is, has Debs done the proper thing?

The world nowadays is incapable of appreciating an act of this sort, when it considers everyone who happens to be caught in the meshes of the law and condemned by its relentlessness, as naturally bad and hopelessly depraved.

World Fails to Consider.

The world does not consider the fact that the law itself is the product of human beings whose every day life when fully revealed and especially when, as a result of it, energetically pursued by a partial prosecutor, would bring them within the realm of considered criminal outcasts.

Mob opinion of today in regard to those who happen to be not careful enough as to be caught by the hooks of the law is still as superficial and yet tinged with almost the same degree of cruelty and savagery as the mob opinion of a thousand years ago.

In a material age like ours, we are not taught and our minds are not trained to be analytical so as to fathom human character and its frailties.

Not to Be Expected.

In reality it is not to be expected that the true causes of criminal acts should be made bare and emphasized by the beneficiaries of our present day system.

It is not to be expected that they should emphasize the superfluity and sign the death warrant of the economic institutions upon which they thrive.

The germs of the diseased capitalistic system have infested in a greater or less degree every member of our present day society.

If criminal acts of an individual are extraordinary it only shows that the germs of his environment or his ancestors were particularly violent, or that he was too courageous or foolish in exposing his acts so as to be caught and condemned.

Placed on Safety.

When the time arrives that the proper causes of criminality are universally established and recognized, it will be found that the responsibility will be shifted from the shoulders of the criminal and placed squarely upon society as a whole.

Having done this, the natural method of preventing and punishing its criminal disarrangements will then be placed them in a hospital where experts in physical, mental and psychological disarrangements will treat them.

It may then be found in the cases of some criminals that what caused them to commit criminal acts was a streak in their character made up of nobleness, kindness, fearlessness, lack of hypocrisy and real humanity.

When that time arrives the acts of Debs will be fully appreciated.

MORRIS JOLLES.

Boston, July 31, 1913.

700 Sail First Cabin on the Imperator

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Imperator sailed with 700 first class passengers. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont; Isaac Guggenheim and Mrs. Guggenheim, C. H. Sanford, the Right Honorable Alexander Carlisle, Mrs. Murlin Hubbard, Robert P. Porter, Thomas J. Pridgeville, Mrs. David Belasco and Bishop Bowman.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Mets car that covered the distance route between Boston and Minneapolis in 89 hours, 55 minutes, in a non stop trip has arrived at the local Mets factory branch, No. 887 Boylston street, where it attracted considerable attention from motorists, who made a minute inspection of the car that held up so splendidly under such trying conditions. Manager Carl Spiegelberg states that the three Mets cars that won the Hidden trophy will arrive in Boston early next week. They will be placed on exhibition in the Boylston street factory, where the famous trophy will also be displayed.

Manager Ketchum of the R. & L. Company, New England distributors of Garford cars, announces that his company have delivered two five-ton Garford trucks to the J. P. Stewart Coal Company of Charlestown.

Amos Shorey, who is the Velie agent in Bangor, Me., has been appointed to the position of New England sales agent for Lozier motors, of Detroit, of the Boston branch. The latter is now in the West attending a convention of the Velie agents and branch managers. Mr. Shorey is in Boston after a visit to the factory.

John Harrington, formerly agent for the Krit and Everitt line in New England, will handle the Hudson line in Springfield.

George H. Snell, the well known automobile body builder in Attleboro, was in town yesterday. Mr. Snell built the bodies for the Velie cars that were recently sold to the Boston fire department.

Ralph Colburn, the New England representative of the Maxwell Company, left for New York last night.

Forbes Looks Into Exchange Laws

Business Editor Sails Tomorrow to Study Foreign Methods.

B. C. Forbes, business editor of the AMERICAN, sails for Europe tomorrow where he will inquire into the laws in force in different countries covering the responsibility of promoters, corporations, directors and officers and also the measure of publicity insisted upon for the protection of investors.

American legislation on these important matters it is now recognized is utterly inadequate to prevent fraud and imposition, costing the public several hundred millions of dollars annually.

As the number of investors in this country increases the urgency of protecting safeguards against unscrupulous promoters, directors and officials becomes more and more pronounced.

The AMERICAN, which has consistently championed the fullest possible corporation publicity, will take up the subject vigorously next month with the object of securing the passage of proper legislation for the protection of the public punishment of financial wrong-doers.

New Haven Extends Automatic System

New Train Signals to Reduce Wrecks to a Minimum.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 1.—The New Haven road is to start at once the work of extending and improving the automatic train signal system, according to the announcement of the company here. This is in line with recent suggestions following the several accidents on the New Haven lines. The road will extend the new automatic signal system recently installed in the so-called "wreck zone" between New Haven and South Norwalk, and from South Norwalk to this city.

Democrats Plan New Trust Acts

Philippine Independence May Be Next Session Feature.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Trust regulation, immigration and rural credits, with possibly Philippine independence, are to be the "headliners" of the Democratic legislative program at the next session of Congress. This was the declaration of party leaders today. It is based on the provision that there is no hitch in passing the tariff and currency bills at this session.

Strengthening of the Sherman anti-trust law is to be the "chief feature of next Winter's session, it was stated.

Miss Sassoon to Wed in Privacy

Marriage to Earl of Rocksavage May Be in Registry Office.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Lord Rocksavage, heir to the title and estates of the Marquis of Cholmondeley, and Miss Sybil Sassoon of London, who inherited the millions of her father, Sir Edward Sassoon, will be privately wed next week.

The Earl objected to being married in a synagogue. Miss Sassoon did not want the ceremony performed in a church. It is believed the wedding will occur in a registry office.

Phone Girls Pick Delegates Today

Boston telephone girls today balloted for delegates to attend the conventions of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor, both of which open on September 15, the former in Faneuil Hall and the latter in Fall River. One delegate will be chosen for each convention. Two meetings were called for today, the first at 2:30 at No. 7 Harrison street, and the second will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in Wells Memorial Hall.

What Do You Know About a Blue Orpington?

No matter how much or how little you know about the breed, there will be some very interesting news about this favored fowl in the Sunday American next Sunday—among other matters of importance on the Poultry Page.

CASSIDY SHOWS DANGER IN USE OF PUBLIC CUPS

Mr. Cassidy has shown you the abuses dishonest soft drink dealers practice through adulteration and substitution. Today he shows you another grave danger to your health through the unsanitary methods of handling glasses, bottles and other containers at public drinking places.

By HARRY D. CASSIDY.

Go into a store and order a drink. The glass that you put in your mouth looks clean. How has it been cleaned since used last?

The majority of stores once modern cleaning machines. But these machines use only cold water. Cold water will not kill any germs. The glass that looks clean to you may have thousands of disease-breeding bacteria clinging to it.

Cling to the Old Style.

I maintain this is one of the gravest dangers to the public health. A few years ago the "bubbler" fountain was an innovation. Today only isolated communities use the common drinking cup.

Railroads have adopted individual paper drinking cups. All the big business houses and city office buildings use them. But drug stores and saloons still cling to the old style of the glass which can be used by anyone having the price.

What protects you from the danger of contracting disease?

I bought a drink at a Boston soda fountain the other day. The clerk took the bottle out of a mess of melting ice. As he poured out the drink the drippings from the outside of the bottle ran down into my glass. Where had that bottle been between the factory and the fountain? Your guess is as good as mine.

Public Drinking Cups.

Lest you think I am overdrawing the matter read this paragraph from the report of an investigation made in a medium-sized Eastern city:

"A cup which had been used in a high school for several months without having been washed—a disgusting fact in itself—was found upon examination to be lined inside with a talck deposit.

"To show the virility or harmlessness of this sediment some of it was injected under the skin of a healthy guinea pig. Forty hours later the guinea pig died. And an examination showed pneumonia germs had caused the death. Another pig, inoculated with some of the sediment from the same cup, developed tuberculosis."

Glasses used in public places should be sterilized. It is perfectly feasible and can be done at a small cost.

Insane Patient Commits Suicide

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 1.—Walter Mann, sixty-five, of Bristol, N. H., committed suicide in the Insane Hospital here, three days after his admission. He stole a napkin from the dining room and strangled himself. A physician was used without success in an attempt to revive him.

A Line of Steamships Between Tampa and Boston Would Be a Fine Thing

The proposal to establish a line of freight steamers between Tampa, Florida, and Boston looks exceedingly good on its face. Mr. Edward Walker, secretary of the Real Estate Exchange of Tampa, is now in the city in conference with representatives of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange concerning this plan.

Mr. Walker says that thirty-five trainloads of fruit and produce leave Tampa every day, but that the RAILROAD RATES are so high that great quantities of fruit and produce rot on the ground because the farmers cannot ship them to market over the railroad and sell them at competitive prices after paying the high railroad charges.

Everybody knows that the cost of transporting freight by water is considerably less than by rail. To ship this fruit and produce from Tampa by water would save the tremendous WASTE which now occurs from the rotting of the unharvested fruit.

Boston and New England would receive the BENEFIT of these shipments, both in the cost of fruit and in the incidental advantages which come from the increase of any business in the community.

It is estimated it would take four or five steamers to handle the produce that would be gathered at Tampa for the Boston market. Moreover the establishment of this line would be a great ADVANTAGE to us in another direction.

A line of smaller steamers could be established between the Isle of Pines, Havana, and the other West Indian ports, where the fruit is now MONOPOLIZED by the United Fruit Company, these steamers connecting with the larger steamers plying between Tampa and Boston.

Mr. Walker says that the business men of Tampa have already pledged a half-million dollars for the purpose of establishing this line between Tampa and Boston. The officials of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, as well as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, are interested in the plans. Mr. Henry C. Long, who has done some harbor developing work in Florida, suggests a large public market in Boston, devoted to the marketing of fruit.

Could anything be more interesting than this suggestion? The port directors and the Chamber of Commerce ought to INVESTIGATE it CAREFULLY and, if it appears feasible, they ought to leave NO STONE UNTURNED TO CARRY IT OUT.

California and Our Merchant Marine

California is advancing a wholesome movement to inaugurate a merchant marine with State money, if a laggard government continues to neglect this truly American policy.

There is a bill in the California Legislature to appoint a board of five merchant marine commissioners—one from the resident shipbuilders, one from the resident ship owners, one from the shippers of domestic goods, one from the consignees of foreign goods and one from the Sailors' Union of the Pacific. This board shall have authority from the State to pay 5 per cent. per annum upon one-half the building cost of ships engaged in foreign and domestic commerce from California ports and to help on the payment of the difference between building and operating such American-built ships with American workmen and American officers and the cost of building and operating with foreign workmen and officers. The State's subsidy is to cease if ever the national government shall aid these ships with a subsidy.

It is plain to see that California, progressive and enterprising among American States, realizes the necessity of a domestic merchant marine, and that California is willing to put her hands in her pockets and help to build such a merchant marine with heroic liberality. It is also substantially evident that California believes a merchant marine will richly repay the original cost.

The California bill will help to point the necessity in our commerce, and will, it is hoped, inspire the government to its duty.

Somebody has to make a start in our merchant marine. Congress and the administration seem laggard and indifferent or incapable.

If our maritime States are brave enough and public-spirited enough to make this beginning, the appealing figures are at hand to inspire them, and the example of California may be the object lesson needed to set on foot the greatest and most essential commercial policy of our country.

The Cruise of the "Piffle"

FELLOW JAPS AND GREASERS,— I AM IN FAVOR OF PEACE! WHY AM I IN FAVOR OF PEACE? BECAUSE, MY FRIENDS, WAR INTERFERES WITH PROSPERITY! PEOPLE DON'T WANT TO HEAR MY LECTURES WHEN THEY ARE FIGHTING! AND MY FRIENDS YOU ALL KNOW HOW MUCH I NEED THE MONEY! I THANK YOU FOR YOUR KIND APPLAUSE!

"Avast! If you don't care to avast then I insist that you either ahoy or belay, whichever you prefer!" This stirring maritime language was uttered by Admiral Juice of the battleship "Piffle," as he stepped ashore n an island known as Jappo-Greaso! It was inhabited by two tribles of hostile natives called the Jappo and the Greaso tries respectively! They may not have been quite the most disagreeable natives on earth, but they were near it—very near it! The Greasos were always looking for trouble and the Jappos could live on two cents a week and save money! With fierce gestures they shouted "Down with honorable American laws!" "Viva la revolution!" and other coarse and impolite expressions! Advancing firmly toward them, followed by a sailor known as Professor Slick, Admiral Juice said, "My friends, if you will gather around me and produce two dollars apiece I will deliver a lecture "Peace, and How I Make It Pay!" after which th Professor here will read extracts from his "Life of Colonel Harvey!" There was intense silence for a moment and then wh blanched faces and cries of terror the natives turned and fled! They were a tough lot, but they had to draw the line somewhre! Suddenly a deep, hollow rumbling was—(To be continued before long).

Schoolboy Honor—State Compels a Man to Tell What He Knows of a Crime—Why Not Apply the Principle to Schools?

By DR. C. H. PARKHURST

OUGHT a schoolboy to "tell on" his mate when asked to do so by his teacher? Is the prejudice against what is called "tattling" justifiable? Is the question one that has two sides to it?

This matter has recently been discussed by one of our magazines and opinions solicited from outside parties.

Replies received are almost unanimous in their verdict that the teacher ought not to make any such demand of a pupil, and eighty out of a hundred claim that the boy ought not to yield to the demand when made.

Such degree of unanimity deserves considerable respect, for the replies were evidently rendered by thoughtful people.

Among boys themselves a tattler is held in universal contempt, and a boy's sense of honor is not a thing to be lightly regarded.

At the same time the fact that twenty out of the hundred expressed the directly contrary there is something worth considering that can be said on the other side. At any rate, there can be no harm in having both sides presented.

Teacher Has Interests of School at Heart; Not So with Pupils

The conception that the average schoolboy has of the schoolroom situation is that it is a kind of tug of war, in which the teacher pulls at one end of the rope and the entire body of pupils at the other.

In old-fashioned district schools, especially in the Winter term, the first day of session was regularly devoted to determining whether the platform end or the desk end of the schoolroom was to rule.

Although the tension between the two parties is at present less extreme than formerly, yet there are the remains of it still, and I have a distinct recollection of how it was when I was a pupil and still more definite remembrance of its presence in the schoolroom when I was myself teacher in the primary department.

Barring exceptions, the prevailing sentiment in the schoolroom is that the teacher is legitimate prey, and that any advantage that can be gained over him, any scheme by which he can be outwitted, lies distinctly within the rights of the pupils, and is to be credited to their sagacity.

The two are working at cross purposes, or, at any rate, with distinct purposes.

The teacher has upon his heart the interests of the school.

That cannot be said of the pupils. It is no care of theirs whether their mates get their lessons or do not get them, whether they behave or misbehave.

There is no esprit de corps wide enough to hold in its embrace scholars AND teacher. The two elements are not co-operant to the achievement of a common success. It is one institution, but the two elements are consciously distinct from each other.

When, therefore, a pupil makes a good recitation the teacher is gratified, but the rest of the pupils do not care. When one pupil breaks a rule or creates some stealthy disturbance the teacher is troubled, but the other pupils are not troubled.

They feel no responsibility for the order of the school as a whole. It is the teacher that keeps school and they feel under no obligation therefore to help him keep it.

It is his school, they say, not theirs; so that if he has difficulty in discovering who created the disturbance, the position they take is that it is no part of their business to help him find out.

That is not the attitude that government takes in ferreting out the authors of social crime. In the relations of common life we are all reckoned as responsible for the maintenance of good order.

If, therefore, a crime is committed any man who is presumed to know anything as to the guilty party is ordered upon the witness stand and compelled to tell under oath all that he knows about it.

He is obliged to turn informer, and it is just that he should be, for we are all of us a part of the government, with responsibility, therefore, devolving upon us individually. My thought is that the same principle should obtain in the schoolroom, and that the school should be conceived of as a corporate institution in which the boys at their desks, as well as the teacher at his, should consciously share in the promotion of a common interest, in the encouragement of the life of the school, whether as relates to culture or conduct.

Make Each Responsible for All and All for Each

In which case every instance of unfaithfulness in study and of disloyalty in conduct will be felt by all who are studious and behaved as a reflection upon themselves, because a reflection upon THEIR school, and therefore to be resisted and avenged, not as an interference with the rights of the culprit, nor as an intrusion into the province of the teacher, but in fulfilment of obligations devolved upon pupils and teacher alike, because joint members of a common organization.

If I were to teach school again I would start in by laying down the principle just stated, and would insist upon every pupil combining with me in maintaining, in every way in his power, the educational life and the moral discipline of the school, giving to the school to that extent the character of a republic in which each is responsible for all and all responsible for each.

Signs Multiply That Boston Is Waking Up

The Huntington Avenue Business Men's Association is showing a lively interest in IMPROVING the district. Its members appreciate the importance of WELL-LIGHTED STREETS in the development of a city.

The connection between the eyes and the nervous system in the human body is known to be very intimate. As this fact becomes more widely known and understood, more interest is taken to please the physical eye for business reasons.

The time was when things ARTISTIC were thought to be cultivated merely for PLEASURE and at the cost of business. This is so no longer. We know now that the eye needs to be comforted as much as the muscles need an easy chair for rest. An attractive lamp-post and a sufficiency of light will attract business.

The activity of the Huntington Avenue Business Men's Association is also one of the innumerable bits of evidence which is accumulating that BOSTON HAS AWAKENED AND IS STIRRING.
